

TWO THEATERS ROBBED, ONE OF $900, OTHER $4800

Strongbox at the Lindell, on North Grand Blown While Police Search for Grand Opera House Robbers.

OFFICIAL HELD UP IN DOWNTOWN PLACE

Bottle Containing Sweet Spirits of Niter Found After Pair Make Threat to Blow Up the Building.

Safeblowers took more than $900 from the office of the Lindell Theater, a moving picture house, at 3511 North Grand avenue, at 3:50 this morning, while policemen throughout the city were looking for the two men who held up the assistant manager of the Grand Opera House, a large vaudeville theater, at 512 Market street, in his office at 10:30 last night, while the show was in progress, and took about $4800.

The explosion at the Lindell Theater was heard by two policemen at Grand and Sullivan avenues, more than a block away. They found a safe torn open, apparently by the explosion of nitroglycerin, and found on the floor a bag containing $1035.24, which the robbers had apparently dropped in their haste to leave. There was $20 in a compartment of the safe.

The receipts of the Grand-Florissant Theater, as well as those of the Lindell Theater, were kept in the Lindell safe, and J. Reeves Epp, manager of the house, reported today that the amount in the safe was about $2000, so that something more than $900 was taken. The robbers entered the theater by a side door, and broke open an inner door to get into the office. The explosion shattered glass in the theater entrance. A hammer, chisel and punch were left by the robbers in the office.

Two Men Held Up Official. The Grand Opera House robbers carried automatic pistols and displayed a one-ounce bottle, which they declared contained nitroglycerin, threatening to blow up the safe, and the assistant manager with it, if he should refuse to open the safe for them. The bottle, which the men left behind them, was found to contain sweet spirits of niter.

The office of the grand is on the second floor of the building, at the Market street front, and is directly above the ticket seller's cage in the lobby. It is the nightly custom to take the ticket seller's receipts to the office at 9 o'clock and lock them in the safe. A policeman is under orders to call at the theater at that time every night, and to see the money put away. This custom was followed last night, and the policeman left when the assistant manager, Elmer E. Fritz, had locked up the money.

Official Ordered Into Office. About 10:30, Fritz started to leave the office. He later told the police that as he stepped into the hallway, which is also one of the exits from the balcony, two men confronted him, and displaying automatic pistols, ordered him to get back into the office.

"One of the men was red-headed," Fritz said, "and the other one said to him, 'Put up the safe.' Red' took the safe key and went to the safe, and told me to get back into the office and make no noise. When we set into the office, he told me to open the safe. I said I didn't know the combination. 'You're a liar,' he said. 'We've been watching you, and you know how to get that money out. I'll give you five seconds to open the safe.'"

"Then Red' hit me on the head with the butt of his pistol. The other fellow said, 'Don't kill him, Red', and 'Red' said he would kill me if I didn't get the safe open. I opened the safe door, and from there I couldn't get it open. The inside doors, that I didn't have the key, threat to blow up theater. 'Red' hit me again, and told me to open the door. When I said again that I hadn't the key, 'Red' took out the bottle and said, 'There's enough nitroglycerin here to blow you and this safe to hell. We'll tie you to the safe and blow you up if you don't get it open.'"

Fritz said he then took the key, which was in his pocket, and opened the inner door, and that "Red" took out the paper money, while the other robber held his revolver pointed at Fritz. Only paper money was taken, the silver being thrown on the floor. Fritz says the men then tied his hands and feet with a new clothes line, and tied two towels around his mouth. The towels appeared to be new, and the police think the rope and the towels were newly

CALLS POLICE TO SHOOT DOG, THEN CHANGES HER MIND

Woman Who Couldn't Sleep When 'Pup Howled, Found After Report of 'Big Shooting.'

It had been a rather dull Saturday night at the Wyoming Street Police Station, when the telephone rang at 3:30 a. m. yesterday, and an excited voice gave the information that there had been a "big shooting" at 3541A South Jefferson avenue. Policemen piled into a patrol wagon, examining their revolvers to see that they were loaded, and rushed to the address.

There they found a woman, un-nerved and hysterical, who refused to give her name, handling a revolver from which several shots had been fired. She apparently was alone, and she said she had fled from her window to attract the police.

"Yes," said the Sergeant. "Yes!" "It was about my dog," said the woman in trembling tones. "I had him in the basement, and he howled so much he kept me awake, so I decided to have you kill him."

"Oh," said the Sergeant. Then he added grimly: "Where is the dog?" She led them to the basement, and there, huddled in a corner, the policeman found a trembling, whimpering fox terrier pup. One of the policemen raised his pistol.

"No," screamed the woman. "I can't stand to have him killed. I have an idea—I'll ship him to a farm. Don't you think that would be better?" she asked the Sergeant.

But the Sergeant's reply was lost in his throat.

Grand Rapids (Mich.) Police Say Man Under Arrest Has Confessed.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Nov. 29.—Fred W. French, assistant cashier of the City Trust and Savings Bank of this city, arrested yesterday on a charge of embezzlement, confessed, according to the police today, that he had used for his own purpose at least $300,000 of the bank's funds.

The shortage, according to officials of the bank, has been accumulating for years. Directors of the bank met this morning and deposited securities amounting to more than double the shortage. The solvent of the bank was unimpaired. French, who had been with the bank 16 years, confessed he had used the money in various business enterprises.

JURY PLACES SULPHUR FUMES' DAMAGE TO ORCHARD AT $4000

Collinsville Farmer Had Sued St. Louis Smelting and Refining Co. for $50,000.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 29.—Damage done to the 30-acre orchard of Peter Henke of Collinsville by sulphur fumes from the St. Louis Smelting and Refining Co.'s plant was set by a jury in the Federal Court today at $4000. Henke had sued for $50,000.

The case was on trial two weeks, in which time chemists and plant pathologists gave varying opinions as to the cause of the decline of Henke's orchard.

GRAND JURY TOLD TO END GAMBLING IN ST. CLAIR COUNTY

General Clean-Up Called for by Judge Crow, Who Gives Special Instructions in Crowded Courtroom.

HE SAYS MOTHERS ARE MAKING COMPLAINTS

Judge Says Indictments Should Be Returned Against Operators of Games and Owners of Buildings.

Vigorous special instructions for a "general clean-up" of the gambling situation in St. Clair County, Ill., were given to the grand jury in Belleville by Judge Crow today. The grand jury, which had been in adjournment, had been recalled to consider several East St. Louis murder cases and to consider other matters. The courtroom was crowded when it became known that special instructions would be issued.

"I desire to call your attention to gambling in this county," said the court. "Women have written to me and have come to me to tell me that their sons are being lured to gambling places. Women have told me that their husbands are going to these places and losing the money which should be devoted to the support of their families."

Outlines Grand Jury's Duty. "I have read in the newspapers of the movement in St. Louis for a concerted police cleanup of gamblers. No matter how busy the police may be, the grand jury is not relieved of its duty to bring offenders to justice and to act independently for justice."

In East St. Louis, I understand, gamblers are taken into justice of the peace courts and are permitted to plead guilty and pay fines. That is as far as it goes, but it is the duty of the grand jury to go farther and to see that the operators of these games and the landlords of the premises are indicted and punished.

General Inquiry Ordered. The law is plain. It provides that for a first offense a gambler may be fined not more than $100. For a second offense he may be fined $500 and sent to jail for six months. For a third offense the maximum penalty is a $500 fine and imprisonment in the penitentiary. Indict all of those against whom evidence is presented to you.

"Let your activities extend to the entire county. I understand East St. Louis is worse in this respect than Belleville, but there is gambling in Belleville, too, and it must be stopped, here and in all parts of the county."

GRAND JURY RESUMES INQUIRY INTO THE PRIMARY

Calls for Ballot Boxes of Precincts in Eighteenth, Nineteenth and Eleventh Wards.

The grand jury this afternoon, resuming its inquiry into charges of fraud in the primary election Aug. 3, called for the primary ballot boxes of the Eighteenth, Nineteenth and Eleventh wards.

The polling place of which is at 2305 Benton street; the Nineteenth ward, Seventh Precinct, 2629 Glasgow avenue, and the Eleventh ward, Sixth Precinct, 3101 Pennsylvania avenue.

The Nineteenth is Nat Goldstein's ward, Goldstein being Circuit Clerk and the head of the "courtouse" of court clerks on the Republican City Committee, which had a slate in the primary, and succeeded in nominating some of its candidates.

Forty-seven men who were judges and clerks in the primary, in eight precincts in seven wards, have thus far been indicted on charges of making a false count and return.

DOUGHTY, ALLEGED KIDNAPER, TURNS OVER $100,000 IN BONDS

Arrested in Connection With Ambrose Small's Disappearance and Charged With Theft; in Toronto.

Doughty, former secretary to Ambrose J. Small, Toronto's long missing millionaire theatrical magnate, arrived here today in custody of officials who brought him from Oregon, where he was arrested in connection with Small's mysterious disappearance.

Doughty's first act after he left the station was to reveal the hiding place of $100,000 worth of Canadian Victory Bonds, cashed in the home of Mrs. Lovatt, his sister. He handed the securities, which have been reported missing for some time to the police.

Doughty was brought here for arraignment on charges of theft of the bonds as well as for conspiracy to kidnap Small.

WILSON TO MAKE CAPITAL HIS HOME, TAKE UP WRITING

He and Tumulty Will Discuss Big Questions and Unique Situation in Political History Will Arise.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Confirming previous reports, a direct intimation came today from a source close to the President that he has made up his mind to remain in Washington after the expiration of his term. Just where he will live has not yet been settled. He will devote his time to writing.

The decision of both the President and his private secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, to continue their residence in the capital under an antagonistic administration will create a situation unique in American political history. Interest in forthcoming developments is accentuated by the fact that any review of the events of the last eight years. Even though neither should write in a vein frankly critical of the new administration, the cleavage between the two parties on the League of Nations toward a realization of the genuine ideals which cannot be lived up to without courage and a constant renewal of fidelity to the purest conceptions of democracy and of international responsibility," said the letter.

GOVERNOR PROCLAIMS MISSOURI BONE DRY

Statute Enacted in 1919 and Approved by Voters in Effect on Official Announcement.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 29.—A proclamation, declaring the State bone-dry prohibition act to be in full force and effect, was issued this afternoon by Gov. Gardner, with his official signature.

Under the referendum provision of the State Constitution, acts of legislation which are submitted to the voters by the referendum, shall be approved by a majority, shall be in effect as soon as the Governor issues a proclamation officially declaring the fact of their adoption.

The bone-dry statute was passed by the Legislature in 1919, the time which ratified the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States. It was to go into effect Jan. 16 last, when the eighth amendment went into effect, but referendum petitions were circulated by the liquor interests, and sufficient signatures were obtained to hold up the enactment until the election of Nov. 2. In that election the voters of the State ratified the action of the Legislature by a majority of 61,299.

The new law was described in detail in last Wednesday's Post-Dispatch. It prohibits the sale of alcoholic content at one-half of 1 per cent, provides for the searching of buildings, other than those used strictly as private dwellings, where it may be believed that liquor is stored, and gives wives and children of drunkards the right to sue the owners of buildings in which liquor is sold, for damages of the ground of nonsupport by a husband or father. It also provides for the State courts, county prosecuting attorneys and the Attorney-General of the State to enforce the law.

ALLAN RYAN TAKES STEPS FOR FINANCIAL READJUSTMENT

Confers With Samuel Undermyer; Comptroller Williams Says Ryan's Bank Loans Are Secured.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Allan A. Ryan, Wall street operator, who was recently reported to be in financial difficulties, today announced that he had conferred with Samuel Undermyer with a view to retaining the latter to take charge of the readjustment of his financial affairs.

A report from Washington today stated that Comptroller of the Currency Williams had announced that there were no loans to Ryan or his firm held by banks under supervision of the Comptroller's office which did not at the present seem to be covered sufficiently by collateral.

FARMER FINDS $300,000 IN BOX

By the Associated Press. DANVILLE, Va., Nov. 29.—A wooden box containing $300,000 in Liberty Bonds, War Savings Stamps and life insurance policies, which were stolen from the Bank of Halifax, at Houston, Va., eight weeks ago, was found today by Guy Lampkin, a farmer, at Midway, Va., according to reports received here.

BREAD 2 CENTS AT CLEVELAND.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 29.—The price of a 20-ounce loaf of bread was reduced from 14 to 12 cents today by a grocery company operating a large number of stores here. The 2-cent reduction is made possible by the decline in the price of flour. It was announced.

POSTAL TELEGRAPH RATES UP

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Increases of 25 per cent to employees effective Dec. 1 are announced by the Postal Telegraph and Cable Co.

In a statement issued by the company and sent to its officers, through the company, the increases are announced "as necessary to meet increased operating expenses, to properly care for our employees and give better service to the public."

NON-MANDATORY POWERS TO HAVE MAJORITY ON BOARD OF SUPERVISION

League Council Approves Plan for Permanent Commission of Nine States to Be Chosen by Council and to Meet Once a Year in Geneva.

DELEGATES DISCUSS EXPLOITATION RULES

Many Favor Rule That Profits From Resources Shall Go to Peoples—Austria Likely to Get Favorable Vote on Admission.

By the Associated Press. GENEVA, Nov. 29.—The Council of the League of Nations this morning approved the final draft of the project for the permanent mandates commission, definitely accepting the tentative proposal to have the commissions comprise five non-mandatory and four mandatory Powers. It was decided that all the members be chosen by the Council. The permanent commission, it is forecast, will probably meet once a year at Geneva and review the administration of the mandate-holding countries. Detailed rules for the commission also were ratified.

The Council did not consider today the proposed invitation to the United States for its participation in the discussion over disarmament. The committee on the admission of new members finally agreed today that it is impossible to admit now the new states carved out of old Russian territory. The theory of the committee is that these states will eventually form part of a new Russian confederation, entirely changing their present status. The committee will recommend, however, that these states be not admitted to full membership, their delegates shall be allowed to sit in the assembly in a consulting capacity without the right to vote.

It is believed that some of the most important work before the Council and the Assembly of the league will be accomplished this week. Committee reports are rapidly being put into final form, and several will be laid before the assembly before Saturday night, it is said.

Among the important questions which will come before the Assembly this week is the question of admitting Austria and Bulgaria to the League of Nations. Despite the strong opposition of Serbia, Rumania and Greece to the granting of membership to Bulgaria at this time, a large majority of the delegates seem in favor of taking that step. There is virtually no opposition in the case of Austria, the application of which probably will be favorably acted upon in a few days.

Raw Materials Question.

The question whether countries shall be allowed to control and dispose at will of their natural resources is the subject of a sharp conflict in a committee of the Assembly. The contest arose over a resolution by Gustave Odor of Switzerland, setting up a permanent economic and financial commission, one of the duties of which would be to examine measures for preventing monopolies in raw materials and the means of controlling their distribution. The resolution is based on Article 23 of the covenant, which assures all states equitable treatment. It is supported chiefly by Italy, Switzerland and other countries not rich in raw materials.

One of the strongest opponents of the resolution is Sir George E. Foster of Canada, who has taken the same attitude as N. E. Rowell, also of Canada, who served notice on the Assembly in an impressive speech a week ago Saturday that any attempt to exercise such control would be regarded as interference in internal affairs, to which Canada would never submit. Rowell, at the same time, said that the entry of the United States could not be hoped for if any such interference were attempted.

Committee No. 8 has recommended that the United States be invited to co-operate unofficially in the study of the question of disarmament on Article 23 of the covenant.

Mezopotamian Question.

With respect to mandates, most of the delegates are very reserved regarding the hearing the position of the United States would have in the matter of the application of the Mezopotamian oil fields, upon the settlement of the mandate question by the assembly.

One of the non-European delegates points out that the Mezopotamian oil fields have been played here continually.

15 CADETS AMBUSHED AND SLAIN WHEN ON PATROL IN IRELAND

By the Associated Press. DUBLIN, Nov. 29.—The first of many internment camps for the Irish Republican army, it is authoritatively stated, will be brought into operation shortly. It is situated at Ballykinnar, in Dundrum Bay, County Down, and is capable of accommodating 1000 prisoners. It is asserted that prisoners will be liable to be interned without trial and that membership in the Irish Republican army will be sufficient reason for internment. Other camps are in the course of preparations in various parts of the country.

England Building Internment Camps for Irish Army

By the Associated Press. DUBLIN, Nov. 29.—The recent unrest among the natives in the naval-controlled island of Samoa, in the Pacific, was "influenced by Commander Kail, Lieutenant-Commander Boucher and an American citizen named Greene," said a dispatch received today by the Navy Department from Capt. Waldo Evans, the new governor of the island, and head of a court appointed to inquire into the trouble at Samoa.

Capt. Evans recommended that Lieutenant-Commander Boucher be court-martialed on charges of "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman," conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline; drunk on duty; disrespect to the President, Secretary of the Navy and superior officers."

Secretary Daniels authorized the trial. The court of inquiry was ordered to Samoa after Lieut.-Commander Boucher had filed with the department serious charges against his senior, Commander Warren J. Terhune, Naval Governor of the island, who recently committed suicide.

Secretary Daniels said that, in his opinion, the action of the court had "completely exonerated" Commander Terhune.

GOVERNOR SAYS NAVY OFFICERS INFLUENCED UNREST IN SAMOA

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The recent unrest among the natives in the naval-controlled island of Samoa, in the Pacific, was "influenced by Commander Kail, Lieutenant-Commander Boucher and an American citizen named Greene," said a dispatch received today by the Navy Department from Capt. Waldo Evans, the new governor of the island, and head of a court appointed to inquire into the trouble at Samoa.

Capt. Evans recommended that Lieutenant-Commander Boucher be court-martialed on charges of "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman," conduct prejudicial to good order and discipline; drunk on duty; disrespect to the President, Secretary of the Navy and superior officers."

SHOE WORKERS ASKED TO ABOLISH WAGE BONUS

Manufacturers of Lynn, Mass., Say It Is Necessary to Reduce Operating Costs to Reopen.

LYNN, Mass., Nov. 29.—The shoe manufacturers of this city today made formal requests of the joint council, United Shoe Workers of America, for abolition of the wage bonus of 12 1/2 to 20 per cent that has been paid for more than a year. This the first general step towards reduction of wages in this city where normally 15,000 operatives are employed in 100 factories engaged largely in the making of women's shoes.

Elimination of the bonus is necessary, according to the manufacturers, in order to reduce their operating costs to the point where they may be reopened after the war with a profit. Trade conditions, they say, have turned orders for shoes to other cities with lower wage rates.

Action on the proposal to abolish the bonus will take about three weeks, as each local union must act on it by referendum.

'MEASURE FOR MEASURE' BARRED

Lucerne Police Stop Shakespeare Play Because of "Indecency."

LUCERNE, Nov. 29.—Shakespeare's "Measure for Measure" has just been banned by the police here because of alleged indecency. The police declare that plays of its tendency will have a bad effect on the fair-minded of this town, "because of its production have notified the manager of the theater that henceforth he must submit to the police a complete repertoire for his season."

"Measure for Measure" was given a few nights ago by a Geneva company in Guy de Portales' French translation, and the next morning protests began pouring in from the public against the play's morality. Shakespeare's drama is the first play in a long time to arouse the wrath of the local censor, though French farces of a very doubtful morality have been played here continually.

Another Auxiliary Policeman Missing and One Is Wounded in Attack at Night in County Cork.

By the Associated Press. MACROOM, County Cork, Ireland, Nov. 29.—Fifteen auxiliary police cadets were killed and one cadet mortally wounded as the result of an ambush by between 70 and 100 men near Kilmichael, southwest of here, last evening. Another of the cadets is missing.

POLICE AND BRITISH OFFICIALS CONFER

Public Galleries of House of Commons Closed and Guard Stationed After Meeting at Premier's Home

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Nov. 29.—The latest Sinn Fein developments in England were discussed at an important conference this afternoon at 10 Downing street, the official residence of Premier Lloyd George, between members of the Government and the heads of the police organizations. The conferees included the Premier, Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for War, Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, Speaker Lowther of the House of Commons, and the heads of the metropolitan police and Scotland Yard.

The closing of the public galleries of the House of Commons followed this meeting. "The approaches to the houses of Parliament are guarded by extra police as a precaution against possible untoward incident, following the disclosure of an alleged Sinn Fein conspiracy for operations in England."

Speaker Lowther stated that the Commons, in answer to a question, that he had ordered the galleries closed as a result of information he had received from the chief commissioner today.

Edward Shortt, the Home Secretary, declared in the House of Commons this afternoon, in reply to questions regarding Saturday night's incendiary dock fire in Liverpool, that there seemed no doubt that the fire was the result of an organized conspiracy in which members of the Sinn Fein party were engaged.

According to the latest information, added the Home Secretary, the situation in Liverpool was well in hand.

As an additional precaution, a police motorboat, armed with a machine gun, was placed on patrol along the river front of the Houses of Parliament.

15 Liverpool Warehouses and Yards Filled by Incendiaries

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 29.—One man was killed and 15 cotton warehouses and timber yards were fired Saturday night in Liverpool, and a dockyard, Bootle. The police say they have strong evidence that the incendiaries, five of whom were arrested, are Sinn Feiners. The fires, which caused a loss of several hundred thousand pounds, covered a wide area and kept the Liverpool fire brigades busy all night. In most cases the fires had obtained a firm grip on the buildings before the brigades arrived, and two of the largest cotton warehouses in the South End were destroyed. Other fires occurred in the North End, seven of them in and near the docks. Several gasoline cans and some paraffin were found in the vicinity of several of the burning buildings.

The police came to grips with the supposed Sinn Feiners in two places where fires were raging. Daniel Ward, a laborer, who was returning homeward from a mission meeting, joined the police when he saw a bunch of men setting fire to a warehouse in the neighborhood of Parliament street. In company with Ward the police advanced toward the men and as they approached, one of them drew a revolver and aimed at the foremost policeman. The weapon missed fire and was then turned upon Ward, who was shot dead. One of the men was captured.

At a cotton warehouse in the North End a gang of incendiaries also opened fire on the police, and bullets pierced the clothing of two

FRANCE WOULD LET TURKISH TREATY ADJUST ITSELF

Premier Leygues to Propose to Lloyd George That Allies Withdraw Support From Greece.

WOULD KEEP HOLD ON DARDANELLES

Policy Would Permit Turks to Regain Much of Territory Taken From Them Under Treaty.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Nov. 29.—To let the Turkish treaty revise itself if the allies cannot agree upon its revision is the official French plan that Premier Leygues will present to Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain and Count Storace, the Italian Foreign Minister, when M. Leygues returns to London tomorrow for the resumption of the conference between the three powers with regard to the Greek and other pressing situations. It was indicated in official quarters today.

By letting the treaty revise itself, the French Foreign Office means, it was explained, that if French and British support is withdrawn from Greece, the Turks can regain much of the territory taken from them by the treaty, although the allies would make sure of retaining their hold upon the straits of the Dardanelles and the Turkish finances.

Of the five big powers which signed the peace treaty—Great Britain, France, Italy, Belgium and Japan—three must ratify the pact to make it effective. Attention was called by the Foreign Office to the fact that none of these had yet ratified the treaty, and that it appeared unlikely that any three of them would do so now, nor was there expectation that Turkey herself would effect ratification in the present circumstances.

JUDGE JOHN KENNISH QUILTS PUBLIC SERVICE COMMISSION

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 29.—Judge John Kennish of the Public Service Commission, tendered his resignation from that body today to Gov. Gardner, who accepted it, and took office Jan. 8, suggesting that the Governor-elect appoint a successor to Judge Kennish.

Judge Kennish was appointed to the commission in September, to succeed Judge David E. Blair, who resigned to make the race for the Supreme Court, in which he was successful.

The term of the office as member of the commission expires April 15 of next year.

Mandate in class A, which carries with it only advisory powers on the part of the mandatory, and that consequently it is for Great Britain to advise, not dictate what shall be the economic policy in Mesopotamia. Others recall that the whole theory of mandates rests on the principle of equality and justice and that it should not be exploited for the profit of the mandatory states.

"It is true that the nations seeking mandates are looking for the utmost good for the people," said another delegate, "but any profits from the exploitation of economic resources under the mandates will naturally go to the peoples themselves."

Delegates to the meeting of the assembly are awaiting with keenest interest the probable discussion tomorrow of a motion proposed by George Nicoll Barnes of Great Britain regarding the conflict between Poland and Russia. It is reported Barnes may attempt to put the league in a position of defending its inactivity in that war, but there is a disposition on the part of delegates not to permit the subject to reach any decisive issue.

For the last two days European delegates have been dividing their attention between the sessions of the assembly here and the meeting of Premiers Lloyd George and Leygues at London. Many delegates continue to discuss the probability of Greece losing its place on the council of the league if Constantine returns to the throne.

Madrid Newspaper Attacks Use of Spanish Force at Vilna.

By the Associated Press.
MADRID, Nov. 29.—Attacks upon the project of sending Spanish troops to Lithuania in execution of the plans of the League of Nations were renewed today by the newspaper El Debate. It declares that the project is "of serious significance" for Spain, whose people were not consulted before their army, which was reached by foreigners. The newspaper asserts this is a "peculiar manner in which to inaugurate open diplomacy."

WOMAN ARRESTED AFTER OPENING POWDER OF OBNOXIOUS ODOR

Diners at Hotel Statler Make Hurred Exit—She Says She Was Hired to Take Box to Dining Room.

Diners at Hotel Statler made a hurried exit today when an obnoxious odor from a powder box, which was opened by a young woman who gave her name as Eleanor de Vaul, 28 Delmar boulevard, filled the room. She was arrested with William Beckett, 29, a chauffeur, 38614 Olive street, and taken to police headquarters. She said she was hired to take the box to the dining room. While taking the box out of her vanity case, the lid came off accidentally and the powder was spilled.

Beckett was absolved of blame by Miss de Vaul, who stated that she had asked him to dine with her and that he knew nothing of the plan. The Statler is one of the establishments affected by the strike of the cooks, waitresses and waiters now in progress.

New L. & N. Train to Louisville.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad will put on a new train tonight to run daily between St. Louis and Louisville, leaving here at 8:45 p. m. and arriving in Louisville at 7:20 a. m., a saving of 45 minutes from the regular L. & N. train. The new train will carry full chair car and Pullman equipment through to Louisville and return.

Men Found Trying to Set Fire to London Lumber Yards.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 29.—Half a dozen men were preparing to set fire to a large lumber yard in the district of Finsbury, an important section of the city of London, less than a mile north of London Bridge, when they were surprised by a policeman Saturday night. The attempt was almost coincident with the breaking out of incendiary fires in Liverpool.

The policeman challenged a lotterer, who immediately attacked the officer and shouted for help. Five men, with revolvers, answered his call, emerging from behind some empty wagons and rushing the policeman, who was compelled to liberate the man he had seen. All the men escaped. Searching behind the wagons the policeman found cotton waste, soaked with gasoline, had been pushed through a gateway of a lumber yard, and he also discovered two revolvers and 100 cartridges. One of the supposed incendiaries later was arrested.

Statement from Dublin Castle on Incendiary Fires.

By the Associated Press.
BELFAST, Nov. 29.—A statement issued from Dublin Castle, after giving an account of the Liverpool fires and accompanying incidents, says: "Read in conjunction with the documents discovered last week in which plans for Sinn Fein reprisals against the English town of Manchester and Liverpool, among a number, were detailed, these things have a very sinister aspect. The fact of the police being fired on suggests that the methods of the Irish republicans are being employed against the English people, even if the personnel of the murderers is not the same."

Incendiaries Burn Block of Buildings in Cork.

By the Associated Press.
CORK, Nov. 29.—In addition to incendiary fires Saturday night an extensive block of buildings in St. Patrick's street was destroyed, involving damages estimated at $500,000. The buildings destroyed included the Blackthorn House, which had been twice previously bombed. The fire started in this structure.

American "Gunmen" Said to Have Appeared in Ireland.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—American "gunmen" are said to have appeared in London today, Ireland according to advices received here today. The presence of these mercenaries in Dublin and other Irish cities have previously been reported.

The police of Liverpool, dispatches from that city say, also believe American "gunmen" have invaded Liverpool. The police claim to have established connection between Sinn Fein headquarters and a number of strangers who are idling about the streets in groups of two or three and having the appearance of desperadoes.

Irish Teacher Killed When Command to Halt Is Not Heeded.

By the Associated Press.
BELFAST, Nov. 29.—Several casualties from clashes with the authorities and from other disorders occurred here and in other parts of Ireland Saturday night and Sunday.

A school teacher at Ballybrannigan, Limerick, failed to respond to an order to halt, given by crown forces, and was shot dead Saturday evening. A Capoulin, a Constable was dangerously wounded by three armed men.

Military Officers in London Report Receiving Threatening Letters.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 29.—A number of military officers here have received threatening letters similar to that sent by the British officers murdered in Dublin in less than a week. The military forces are taking precautions to protect the threatened officers.

HARDING PLANS LEAGUE OF NATIONS CONFERENCE SOON

President-Elect and Party Sailed From Panama Zone for Home Yesterday Afternoon.

SHIP DUE TO REACH NORFOLK SATURDAY

No Hint of Any Possible Changes in Running Canal's Affairs as a Result of Inspection.

By the Associated Press.
ON BOARD STEAMSHIP PASTORES, Nov. 29.—(By Wireless).—Senator Harding and his party encountered rough weather during the first full day of his return trip from the Panama Canal zone. The Pastores today was heading northeast across the Caribbean Sea. Though Capt. Glenn classified the disturbance as moderate, it was stiff enough to try the seamanship of the passengers. Mrs. Harding kept to her stateroom, but the President-elect was on deck most of the day amusing himself with the usual ship games. Several rainstorms occurred during the day's run.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.

COLON, Nov. 29.—President-elect Harding turned his face toward home yesterday afternoon. His inspection of the Canal zone, completed with a trip up the Chagres River yesterday, he is leaving with a good view of the general features of the canal, which promises to be the pet of his administration.

Everyone is anxious to get down to work. George Christian, Senator Harding's secretary, said that the League of Nations conference will begin "very promptly" after the Senator's return to Marion.

One of the results of the trip here was that Mr. Harding was able to study the defenses of the vital link between the oceans. A particular feature of this link is the canal situated in this part of the canal is known by Senator Frelinghuysen, who will probably become the next President's spokesman on canal matters in the Senate. Frelinghuysen has made a study of the military aspect and has been getting his own views on the manner in which the canal should be defended. Senator Harding has also a much better idea of the necessity of the canal to American commerce.

Speaks at Colon.

In a speech at a banquet given by Gov. Arcia of the Province of Colon, Saturday night, he termed the canal "the great exchange highway of the world," adding that America, with her resources, genius and industry will build up an enormous United States Canal zone. Senator Harding dropped no hint of his ideas on any possible changes in the methods of running the canal's affairs, but his frequent questioning showed that he is looking for loose bits of information gathered from high officials, skilled workers, pilots and others.

Senator Harding's manner has won the Panamanians as well as Americans in the Canal zone, and his remarks won a reception equal to that received in the United States. He has learned that there is some dissatisfaction in Panama with the United States, especially by those who believe that the United States intends eventually to take over the smaller republic. This feeling is frequently mentioned on the streets and is known to exist by most Canal zone Americans. It is understood that there is considerable loose bits of information gathered from high officials, skilled workers, pilots and others.

Party Sails for Home.

The Senator and his party sailed for home on the United Fruit liner Pastores at 4 p. m. yesterday afternoon.

The Pastores is bound for Norfolk by way of Kingston, Jamaica.

During a visit to the naval air station at Coco Solo, Mr. Harding accepted an invitation to make a flight in a seaplane, spending 15 minutes over Limon Bay in one of the largest N-C type planes used by the navy.

The plane attained a height of about 1000 feet, and, though it was his first experience at flying, Mrs. Harding appeared to enjoy it immensely.

SON MAY GET $50,000 ESTATE

Inmate of Insane Asylum Not Mentioned in Father's Will.

By the Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 29.—Failure of W. T. Seaman Sr. to mention his only son in his will, which in his will, may result in the son inheriting the entire $50,000 estate under a ruling in the Greene County Probate Court.

The elder Seaman, who resides in Springfield, died recently at Eureka Springs. The son is an inmate of an insane asylum at Clarinda, Ia., and is being brought here under the court order. The estate was left largely to the Child Saving Institute of Omaha, Neb., and friends of Seaman in Aurora, Mo., and Springfield, Mo. The court ruled that under the Missouri law a child omitted from a will when the property is left to "strangers in blood" may inherit the entire estate.

TREATY NEGOTIATIONS WITH JAPAN TO BE RESUMED AT ONCE

Conversations to Be Conducted by Undersecretary Davis in Absence of Colby.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Negotiations between the United States and Japan looking to a new treaty growing out of the adoption of the anti-alien land law in California will not be interrupted by reason of the visit of Secretary Colby to South America. The conversations are to be resumed at once and it was said today that Undersecretary Davis was fully acquainted with the details of the negotiations and could bring them to a conclusion.

State Department officers are to confer with leaders in the Senate and House before the negotiations are completed. In this connection it was learned that the exclusion of Japanese coolies from this country is to be accomplished not by an imperial Japanese decree, but by American law.

It also was learned that it is not proposed to confer full civil rights on Japanese Americans now in the United States, but that there will be some safeguarding of the property rights of Japanese already legally acquired.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 29.—Secretary of State Colby telegraphed today to Gov. Stephens that treaty negotiations with Japan are "informal and tentative and have not as yet reached the point of submission and of formal consideration."

The Japanese Exclusion League of California against provisions in the treaty that would conflict with the anti-alien land law of California.

ST. LOUIS CITY PLAN EXPERT TO FILL CHAIR AT ILLINOIS U.

Harland Bartholomew to Teach Civics Design—Urges Plan for Growth of University Campus.

By the Associated Press.
URBANA, Ill., Nov. 29.—Harland Bartholomew, city plan expert of St. Louis, who was recently called to fill the chair of civics design at the University of Illinois, declared today that the University of Illinois needs a general plan for growth.

"What this campus really needs," observed Bartholomew, "is a plan for the growth of the buildings to form a general effective grouping, and there is in so many of our Eastern colleges. We should make plans for the growth of a campus the same as we make plans for the growth of a town. That plan should be one of general character of design."

"The University of Illinois, in obtaining the city plan expert of St. Louis, has added to its staff a man who is known both in America and in European countries as one of the great authorities on the subject of city planning," said Prof. C. S. Hill, head of the division of landscape gardening.

"For many years the three names, Arnold, Goodrich and Ford, stood for the best in practical city engineering," today, a fourth is added, that of Bartholomew.

Bartholomew will spend two or three days here each month.

MAN COMES HERE FROM AFRICA TO TAKE MASONIC DEGREE

Arthur D. Boone, 26 years old, of Jackson, Mo., an employee of the St. Louis Steamship Company, left St. Louis Saturday night for Cape Town, India, via New York, an hour after he had taken the thirty-second degree in the Masonic order. He came here for the purpose from the west coast of Africa, arriving the day before the class of which he was a member began its work.

He was so completely occupied with taking the degree, which was the sole purpose of his trip, that he did not have time to visit his home at Jackson.

FRENCH WARSHIPS TO GREECE

By the Associated Press.
TOULON, France, Nov. 29.—The French battleship Lorraine left here for Piraeus, Greece, today. The cruiser Ernest Renan departed for the same destination last night, while the destroyer Waldeck-Roussin, which has been at Constantinople, arrived at Piraeus Wednesday.

One more battleship, three cruisers and two torpedo boats have been ordered to proceed to Piraeus, and the French will have a formidable squadron in that port by Dec. 5, the date on which the plebiscite regarding the return of former King Constantine will be held.

May Make a Start on Taxes.

Practically the same situation exists with regard to taxes. Efforts will surely be made to get relief from tax burdens, and it will be more difficult for the Republicans to ignore the tax questions than the tariff. It is fully expected, for instance, that the President will in his message make occasion to approve the suggestions for a reduction of taxation to be made by Secretary Houston in his annual report of the Treasury Department. If these suggestions are adopted, they will be a relief to the taxpayer.

bought and, that some dealer may remember having sold such articles. The men left by the door by which they had entered, and went down the stairs used by persons leaving the balcony. The uniformed man says the men hit him with their elbows, knocking him down. A porter also saw them leaving.

Fretz went toward a door, and made him to raise him to the floor, could climb through the glass wall with his heel. The women's room of the theatre was on the other side, and a negro maid, frightened by the breaking of the glass, called in help from the balcony. The first man who entered helped to release Fretz, whose head was bleeding from the robbers' blows.

Fretz said the robbers were of medium build, tall and weight, and both wore silk shirts. "Red" wore a dark blue suit and a dark velvet hat, and his face was freckled. Fretz said he had seen the man before, but could not be sure where he had seen him. The other man wore a box-cloth suit. Neither had an overcoat.

Nine redheaded police characters were taken in a roundup later in the night, but Fretz did not identify any of them.

WILSON MESSAGE EXPECTED TO URGE TAX REDUCTIONS

Congress Also May Be Asked by President to Consider Measures on Cost of Living.

PLAN TO POSTPONE PAYMENT OF TAXES

Resolution May Be Considered at Short Session—Hearings on Revenue Question Contemplated.

By DAVID LAWRENCE.

A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Congress gets back next week for its regular December session, but whether President Wilson will deliver his annual address in person, as he has done so many times before, or whether he will send it to be read by a clerk as other Presidents used to do, is still undetermined.

The President himself wants to make a farewell appearance at the Capitol and is said to be well enough to do so. Yet there is always a risk with one who has had a nervous breakdown that excitement might bring on a recurrence of the same trouble. Whenever any decision has been made, it will be a risk to the President's health, the members of the President's family have always played safe by avoiding the risk altogether. That's why it seems unlikely that Mr. Wilson will go to Congress, though he is strong-willed and may insist upon doing it. There are, on the other hand, those who think the President might be persuaded to postpone his visit until the close of the session in March and say goodbye by then.

Possible Recommendations.

As for the contents of the presidential message, which is being prepared, no inkling has been given. From a political viewpoint it is expected that the message will contain recommendations that Congress reduce the burden of taxes and also cut the cost of living. Of course, it is unlikely that the Republicans, who are in the majority in the Senate, will permit the President to be taken on the recommendations of a Democratic President, since their own President will take office in three months and call an extra session of Congress to adopt a legislative program. The Democrats, however, talk of wasted time and opportunity and will not lose the chance to accuse the Republicans of dilatory tactics and political expediency.

On the other hand, the Republican leaders already counter with this query: Would President Wilson sign a Republican tax bill, especially one that proposed the raising of revenue by the imposition of a protective tariff? White House officials say Mr. Wilson would sign a tariff bill if it followed the lines of suggestions on that question which he has already made to Congress. The President has favored protection for infant industries and others whose economic relationship to the tariff question has been disturbed by war. But there is no reason to indicate that he would sanction the kind of a tariff bill that the Republicans would put before him.

To work out any kind of tariff bill would take practically all of a session of Congress and leaders of both sides agree that unless there was an assurance of compromise the time would be wasted. But the Republicans who want high protective tariffs have no reason to indicate that they would compromise with and without any influence from the White House, the tariff bill that would be drawn would be strongly protectionist. Even Warren Harding will have his troubles keeping the advocates of a high tariff from going to extremes, so the prospects of a compromise bill are brighter under the next Republican administration than in the short session of Congress about to begin.

FATHER AND TWO SONS HELD ON DRAFT CONSPIRACY CHARGE

Younger Men Said to Have Wandered for Two Years to Evade Army Service.

By the Associated Press.
SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Nov. 29.—After more than two years' wandering in South America, Mexico and Western cities of the United States, Tom Caplis Jr. and Joe Caplis, farmers of Shreveport, La., reputed to be wealthy, were in the city jail here Monday with their father, the three charged with conspiring to violate the draft laws.

They were called from bed and arrested early Sunday morning by Federal officers at a house in one of the better residence sections, where, with women members of the family, they had been living for about two months. Fugitive complaints were filed in the United States Commissioner's court and bonds fixed at $2500 each.

Holdup at Gambling Game.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
PANA, Ill., Nov. 29.—Four men entered a room at the New Frances Hotel last night and held up a gambling game, robbing players and spectators of $1500, watching for other valuables. R. C. Cutler was relieved of $1500. The robbers back 3 out of the third floor room, ran down stairs and escaped in an automobile. They were traced to Moweaqua, 14 miles north of Pana, where a suspect was arrested.

meat with popular approval. It is thought the Republican majority will be compelled at least to begin hearings and make a start on the question, lest it be too long delayed out of the window four bottles of home made beer and two sacks of sugar. There also were found nine new automobile tires about which the police desire further information.

Uniformed policemen visited a pool room at 4918 Delmar boulevard at night, and after observing the conduct of several youths, searched them. In the pocket of Michael Stiu, 17 years old, of 726 Aubert avenue, they found a queer-shaped flask containing half a pint of whisky. The flask was designed in the shape of a fish.

Stia said he got the whisky from Walter Sanderson, also 17, of 4448 Olive street, who said he got it from Ernest Stiu, 15, Milwaukee brother, and Ernest admitted that he had purchased it at a downtown cafe, which he named. The police took the whisky and the fancy flask. The statements of the boys were turned over to the Federal authorities.

Policemen who raided the barber shop of August Begeman, 5306 West

Flourissant avenue, at 4:30 p. m., reported finding six men seated around a table on which were seven decks of cards and one man standing at the side of the table. The seven, including the proprietor, were arrested. They gave bond for their appearance in Police Court.

Two Robbers Captured.

Two of the robbers ran south on Eighth street, where the other two robbers into an alley bet Cass avenue and O'Fallon at firing several shots at them. He was found behind a wooden sign, while the third acted as a "look out." One of the robbers took silver watch and chain from him and when he protested the robbers hit him on the jaw. Debris was help, and Police Officer Franklin Ferries, who was at the trial; former Assistant City Attorney Charles F. Krone, prosecuted the case; Maurice J. Ray, secretary of the Building Trades Council, and Florence Curran of Con P. Curran Printing Co.

EASTERN BUSINESS CONCERNS BROUGHT HERE BY ADVERTISING
W. Weisenburger, of C. of C. Tel. Women's Advertising Club, results of Municipal Publicity.
Two Eastern business concerns are coming to St. Louis as the result of municipal advertising campaigns being carried on which provide the spending of $50,000 for publication of the advertising of St. Louis in national newspapers and trade journals, it was announced by W. E. Weisenburger, assistant secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, in an address before the Women's Advertising Club at the Statler Hotel today.

Weisenburger named the Procter and Gamble Co., Haverhill, Mass., and the Eastern Tool Manufacturing Co., Bloomfield, N. J. The manufacture of shoe findings and heels to have its factory, which will be located at 121 North Ninth street, ready for operation by spring. The Eastern Tool Manufacturing Co., manufacturers of shoe special small tools and special machinery, has taken an option on a location which will be utilized in establishing a branch office.
The location of these two concerns, however, Weisenburger said, is not the greatest result of the campaign. The greatest good accomplished has been the general attitude of the business interests of the entire country towards the city as a location from which business can be carried on less expensively and with greater dispatch.

MAN PAROLED FROM LIFE TERM HELD AS ROBBER

Police Also Say Another Man Captured Following Robbery at Eighth and Cass Is an Ex-Convict.

BUTCHER LOCKED IN ICEBOX AT 5:30 A. M.

Two Men Hold Up Store at Eighteenth and Mullany and Take $50—Customer Flees.

James P. Walsh, 46 years old, of 1517 Wash. street, who has served five terms in the penitentiary at Jefferson City, aggregating a total of 21 years, and who was paroled by Gov. Major seven years ago while serving a life sentence as an habitual criminal, and John Hogan, 47, of 1527 North Seventeenth street, who has served two penitentiary sentences for highway robbery, were arrested last night following a holdup at Eighth street and Cass avenue, in which Gustave Dahls, 47, of 554 Standby avenue, Madison, Ill., was robbed of a watch and chain. A third man who participated in the robbery escaped.

Records of Prisoners.
Walsh began serving prison sentences in 1888, when he was sentenced to two years for burglary. His record since that time includes a term of four years and one of three years for burglary, one of two years for highway robbery and a life sentence imposed Nov. 17, 1900, for highway robbery under the habitual criminal act. Hogan served three terms in the workhouse for larceny, beginning in 1897, and has served two two-year terms in the penitentiary for highway robbery and burglary.

The parole of Walsh was one of a number granted on Thanksgiving day and was recommended by State Senator Joseph Brogan, William Zwick, a State legislator from Kansas City; Frank P. Walsh of Kansas City, who was chairman of the War Labor Board; former Secretary of State Cornelius Roach, Circuit Judge Franklin Ford, who presided at the trial; former Assistant City Attorney Charles F. Krone, who prosecuted the case; Maurice J. Cassidy, secretary of the Building Trades Council; and Florence Curran of the C. O. P. Curran Printing Co.

Dahls was walking north on Seventh street at 7:15 o'clock and at Cass avenue was stopped by three men, one of whom held a revolver and the other two held knives. They marched him to Eighth street and Cass avenue, where, in the shadow of a building, two began searching him while the third acted as a "look-out." One of the robbers took a silver watch and chain from Dahls and when he protested the robber hit him on the jaw. Dahls yelled for help, and Patrolmen Flinn and Price, who were at Seventh street and Cass avenue, responded.

Two robbers captured.
Two of the robbers ran south on Eighth street and the other ran north. The policemen pursued the two robbers into an alley between Cass avenue and O'Fallon street, firing several shots at them. Hogan was found behind a wooden crate. He had Dahls' watch and a part of the chain in his pocket. Dahls identified both prisoners. He said that Hogan was the one who had hit him and that Walsh had acted as "lookout." Neither Walsh nor Hogan would make a statement to the police.

Paciorek, a butcher at the southwest corner of Eighteenth and Mullany streets, was serving a customer at 5:30 o'clock this morning when a robber walked into the shop and ordered the two men to stand against a wall. The robber then went to the cash register and finding one of the cash compartments locked, called upon Paciorek to open it. Paciorek lowered his hands and picked up a butcher knife with which he intended to break the lock. "No you don't," said the robber. "Put that thing down and get into the ice box."

Paciorek obeyed and while the robber was closing the ice box door the customer fled. A dog belonging to the butcher, seeing his master being locked in the ice box, snapped at the heels of the robber and the latter fired a shot at the dog, which ran beneath a chopping block and remained there. The robber then broke the cash register lock with the butcher knife, extracted $50 and departed. Fifteen minutes later Paciorek was released from the ice box by a customer who heard him pounding on the door.

Other Robberies Reported.
Two men who displayed badges and said they were members of the police "gun squad" stopped William Harris of 3327 Lucas avenue at High and Wash streets at 9 p. m. and said they would have to search him for a concealed weapon. They took $15 from his pocket and ran away. William Broder of 922 Chouteau avenue was robbed of $70 by two highwaymen at Second and Valentine streets at 12:15 a. m. William Strobel of 488 Lafayette avenue was robbed of $3 by two men at Thurman boulevard and Shaw avenue at 10 p. m.

MISSOURI PACIFIC BONDS TO BE PAID ON DEC. 21

Settlement on $20,087,000 Issue to Be at $446 to $473 on the $1000.

Omar E. Robinson, special master under the final decree in the Missouri Pacific Railway receivership case, today filed with the United States District Court, through Judge Hook of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, a report announcing that in accordance with the final receivership decree he will make final payments Dec. 21 to all holders of the 5 per cent refunding bonds of the company now outstanding.

These bonds fell due in 1916, their face value being $20,087,000 and their accrued value with interest on Dec. 21 being $27,445,536. The report points out that the proceeds of the sale of the company's property under court order in February, 1917, was $9,800,000, leaving a deficiency of $18,048,536 in the amount necessary to fully retire the refunding bonds.

On this basis, the report says, the holders of the bonds will be entitled to receive $473 for each $1000 bond and $446 for each $500 bond. The report also states that the proceeds of the sale of the company's property under court order in February, 1917, was $9,800,000, leaving a deficiency of $18,048,536 in the amount necessary to fully retire the refunding bonds.

Quake Recorded at Georgetown U.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—An earthquake shock of moderate intensity was recorded today on the seismograph at Georgetown University. The shock began at 2:19 a. m. and continued until 4 a. m., and it was estimated that the disturbance was 5100 miles from Washington, probably in South America.

other on Shaw avenue and on De Tonty street while the families were asleep. Money found in the trousers belonging to the heads of the families were taken. At two of the homes the burglars helped themselves to lunch.
At the home of Paul D. Peters, 4274 De Tonty street, the burglars took the trousers from Peters' room into an adjoining room, but found nothing in the pockets. They then went to the refrigerator and prepared themselves a lunch of cold meat and milk which they ate at the kitchen table. They also helped themselves to lunch at the home of E. W. McGregor, 4333 Shaw avenue, and took $20 from McGregor's trousers.
The burglars took $42 from the trousers of John W. Schoel, 4222 Shaw avenue, and carried the trousers of William C. Stiles, 4229 De Tonty street from his room to the back yard, but found nothing in the pockets.
While the family of John Kovacic, 520 Hickory street, was absent, burglars ransacked the residence and took $350 in cash and a check for $50 from beneath the mattress. Jewelry valued at $200 was stolen from the residence of John Ashbaugh, 5018 Cabanne avenue.

WOMAN STRUCK BY AUTO YESTERDAY DIES OF INJURIES

Mrs. Irene A. Hodges Hit When She Stopped to Pick Up Handbag—Motor Fatalities 104 for Year.

ACCIDENT VERDICT IN DEATH OF BOY

Ernest Jobsky, 12, Killed by Truck at Ninth and Olive—Negro Injured on Nov. 21 Dies.

Mrs. Irene A. Hodges, 26 years old of 4375 Laclede avenue, died this afternoon as a result of injuries received yesterday at 6 p. m. when struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Hockold of 7701 Virginia avenue, a chauffeur, while crossing Laclede avenue near her home.
Accompanied by another woman, Mrs. Hodges started across Laclede avenue from north to south and dropped her hand bag. As she stooped to pick it up the automobile struck her. Hockold, who was arrested, said he was going at moderate speed and that Mrs. Hodges stepped backward in front of the automobile, when she attempted to regain her hand bag, and that the cause was unavoidable.

A coroner's jury today returned a verdict of death by accident in the case of Ernest Jobsky, 12 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Jobsky at 1412A Maple avenue, who was struck by an automobile truck at 1:30 p. m. yesterday at Ninth and Olive streets and died before he could be conveyed to the city dispensary.

The police were told yesterday that the boy had alighted from a west-bound street car and had walked around the rear end of the car, when he was hit by a truck owned by the Popular Price Express Co., 210 North Eighteenth street, and driven by Louis Appleman, 30 years old, of 2643 Hickory street, who was arrested, but no testimony that he alighted from the street car was given at the inquest. Appleman said he was turning east into Olive street from Ninth street, when the boy stepped in front of the truck.

A coroner's verdict of accident was returned today in the case of Edward Harris, 41 years old, of 1314 B. le street, a negro, who died yesterday from injuries suffered Nov. 21, when struck, at Seventeenth street and Franklin avenue, by the automobile of Joseph Zemlick, 22, of 3106 Sheridan avenue. Harris was first treated at city hospital and later taken to his home. Paralysis, which developed from the fracture of his right hip, caused death.

This, with the death of the Jobsky boy, brought the total of automobile fatalities this year to 103, as compared with 85 in the same period last year.

Man Hurt, Driver Flees.
William Wilsch of 6982 Tholoan street, Lindenwood, St. Louis County, was seriously injured by an automobile at 12:15 o'clock this morning at the intersection of Alabama, Popple and Ivory avenues. The driver left the scene without giving his name. At the city hospital Wilsch was found to be suffering from internal injuries from lacerations of the scalp. When he was struck, the driver stopped and got out. He asked several persons who had gathered around Wilsch's prostrate form if his victim was injured and when answered in the affirmative went back to his car and drove away.

Frederick Dyer, 25, of 5915A North Market street, and Leon Schumacher, 26, 1316 North Union boulevard, a student were injured seriously when an automobile driven by Harold Ruel, 27, 1339 Clara avenue, a student, collided with the automobile of Thomas J. Darcy, manager of the Buckingham Hotel, at Euclid avenue and Belmont boulevard at 5 p. m. yesterday. Darcy's machine afterwards averted and collided with a lamp post at the southeast corner, wrecking the machine and post. Darcy was uninjured. Dyer and Schumacher were taken to Barnes Hospital. Dyer with a fractured shoulder and internal injuries, and Schumacher with scalp wounds and cuts and bruises. Both the injured boys were riding with Ruel, Ruel and Darcy were arrested charged with careless driving.

NEW DRY OFFICER FOR NEW YORK

K. B. Phagan Made Acting Supervisor to Succeed F. L. Boyd.
By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Knox B. Phagan, who has been first Assistant Federal Prohibition Supervisor in this district for several weeks, tomorrow will become acting supervisor, taking the place of Frank L. Boyd, who has asked to be transferred to another field. Appointment of Phagan, announced here today, was made upon recommendation of Supervisor Boyd, who will take a vacation in the South.

Boyd supplanted James Shelvin as chief prohibition enforcement officer here, when, upon orders from Washington, Shelvin was transferred to duty in Texas.

CAMPAGN OPENS TO GET 50,000 IN SAFE DRIVERS' CLUB

Safety Council Move to Eliminate Motor Accidents and Make Streets Safer Will Continue Until Dec. 11.

ALL AUTO DRIVERS ELIGIBLE TO CLUB

Membership Requires Study of Traffic Laws of City, State and County—42 Join Early.

The blowing of factory whistles at 9:30 this morning announced the opening of the twelve-week campaign of the Safety Council to obtain the membership of 50,000 residents of St. Louis and St. Louis County in the Safe Drivers' Club for the promotion of more careful automobile driving and the elimination of motor accidents. Membership is limited to automobile drivers and owners. The campaign will end Dec. 11.

The Safe Drivers' Club is part of a definite program for public safety, laid out by the council, which was established in 1917. The membership fee of the club is $1 per year per car and includes membership in the Safety Council. It is provided that members "study and be intimately informed of the traffic laws of the State, city and county," and must conform to these laws when driving.

It is further provided that in promoting safe driving members are "to use proper influence as citizens at all times, to discourage reckless driving and to create a sentiment in support of all measures reasonably calculated to make our streets safe for all."

42 Join Club.
This morning 42 persons had already joined the Safe Drivers' Club, the first of these being Dr. E. George Payne, principal of Harris Teachers' College. Dr. Rudolph S. Vitt, president of the Safety Council and former Coroner, was second; Philip H. Brockman, chairman of the membership campaign, third; Police Judge Mix, fourth, and Mayor Kiel, fifth.

Among the other early members are various persons officially and unofficially connected with the problem of safe driving. Among them are City Counselor Davies and Police Judge Ittner were among these.

Men and women automobile owners and drivers to the number of 60,000 received letters today urging them to join the Safe Drivers' Club. With the letters were sent membership cards, to be returned if membership is not desired and small, circular "stickers" to be pasted in windshields, signifying membership. These are in green and white.

School for Drivers.
One of the objects of the Safe Drivers' Club is the establishment of a safe drivers' school, to give courses of 10 lessons for instruction in traffic rules. Special schools for women drivers are to be established. This work is done under the Traffic and Legislation Committee of the Safety Council. Among the other committees which will benefit by the fund created by Safe Drivers' Club membership fees are the Vigilance, Publicity and Bulletin, Statistics, Speakers', Playgrounds, Women's, Fire Prevention, Motion Picture, Church and Law Enforcement committees.

More than 5000 solicitors are working to obtain members for the club. Mayor Warren C. Fryer, University City is in charge of 400 insurance salesmen making a house-to-house canvass, which is augmented by 1200 women from the League of Women Voters and 1200 workers of the Women's Republican Central Committee. The Citizens' and Vigilance committees of the Safety Council are also engaged. Over 1000 membership kits, containing from 50 to 3000 membership cards, have been distributed to factories. There are 180 industries belonging to the Safety Council.

WILSON RECEIVES DIPLOMATS

Three Latin-American Ministers Call at White House.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Three Latin-American ministers, who recently arrived in the United States to assume their duties, were received today by President Wilson.

PARENTS AGAIN ARE URGED TO GUARD AGAINST DIPHTHERIA

They Are Advised to Take Children to Health Department Stations for Free Inoculation.

The fact that there have been 30 deaths from diphtheria in St. Louis out of 676 cases developed in the 29 days since Nov. 1 caused Dr. Martin C. Woodruff, chief diagnostician of the Health Department, to issue a statement today urging parents to take their children to stations maintained by the department for the free inoculation of anti-diphtheria serum.

Most of the cases developed have been among school children. Dr. Woodruff said. The City Comptroller authorized the free administration of serum for 60 days, beginning Nov. 1, but Dr. Woodruff said the response has been small. Most of the deaths could be prevented by the precautionary measure of taking the serum treatment to avoid infection, he said.

The serum may be obtained at the Health Department office, in the basement, room 35, of the Municipal Courts Building, Fourteenth and Market streets, or at any of the following police stations: Carondelet, Pennsylvania avenue and Robert street; Souldard, 714 Souldard street; North Market, Tenth and North Market streets; Magnolia, Grand and Magnolia avenues; Dayton, Dayton street and Jefferson avenue; Newstead, 14 North Newstead; Page Union and Page boulevards; Mount, Forest Park and Baden substitution, Broadway and Pelham avenue.

Physicians are on duty to give the serum at all these places from 2 to 5 p. m. on Mondays to Fridays, inclusive, and from 9 a. m. to noon on Saturdays. They are not on duty Sundays.

"People should take advantage of this opportunity now," Dr. Woodruff urged. "The diphtheria death rate is entirely too high."

Dr. Withers' Father Dies

Dr. John W. Withers, Superintendent of Instruction of the Board of Education, left today for Portsmouth, O., after receiving word of his father, John Martin Withers, 83 years old, of Ben Lomond, W. Va., who had died while visiting his daughter, Mrs. S. A. Maguire, in Portsmouth. The body will be taken to Ben Lomond for burial.

Ice Break in Missouri River

BISMARCK, N. D., Nov. 29.—The ice broke in the Missouri River here yesterday and within an hour the stream had risen five to eight inches. The breaking ice carried out a large portion of a temporary piling bridge used by a construction company in building a bridge across the river here. Several men at work on the bridge barely escaped.

Wet Wash Saves

There's true economy—saving for yourself and for your clothes—in the Wet-Wash method.
You have only to consider your feelings after a wash-day to understand what we save you physically and mentally. And by washing your entire family bundle in soft water and the mildest soap, without rubbing, we save your clothes.
An appreciable amount of time is saved because when your washing is returned—ideally sweet and clean without ink marks or tags—a large percentage of your things can be dried and used without ironing while the remainder is just damp enough to iron properly.
The cost is trifling—but 6c per pound (minimum bundle $1.20)—much cheaper than the cost of a laundress or any other method of having the family washing done. Try it and learn how money-saving, time-saving, health-saving and clothes-saving Wet Wash really is.

Phone any of the following plants and a driver will call for your bundle:

MERCHANT MARINE BENEFITS TOLD OF BY COTTON BELT HEAD

Road's Employees Urged to Hasten Shipments Destined for Foreign Ports on U. S. Vessels.
In discussing the benefits to be derived from the operation of an American Merchant Marine adequate to take care of all the raw materials and manufactured articles for export from this country, President J. M. Herbert of the Cotton Belt lines calls attention to the need for co-operation among officers and employees of that road, with a view to pushing as much as possible shipments of this character destined for foreign ports in American steamships.

Reference is made to a recent statement made by Admiral W. S. Benson, chairman of the United States Shipping Board, as follows: "The nonexistence of an American merchant marine adequate to properly take care of such shipments and the consequent necessity of producing similar raw materials and manufactured articles in competition with our own people through the fact that they have an adequate merchant marine and we do not, control the amount of export shipments from this country."

18 CITIES ARE REPRESENTED AT PUBLICITY CONVENTION

American Travel Development Association Holding Sessions at Hotel Statler.
The American Travel Development Association is holding a convention today at Hotel Statler, to be followed tomorrow and Wednesday by meetings of the community advertising department of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World and the National Association of Convention Bureau Secretaries, kindred organizations.

Charles F. Hatfield, manager of the St. Louis Convention and Publicity and Tourist Bureau, presided. Representatives of convention and public relations bureaus of 18 cities were present. The affiliated bureaus direct the expenditure of $62,000,000 annually for national advertising.

Among those attending is Fred Houser of Atlanta, Ga., who landed the 1921 convention of the Advertising Clubs of the World for his city, and who recently returned from Tokyo, Japan, where he was sent to negotiate for a large Sunday school convention.

ELDERLY COUPLE FOUND DEAD IN GAS-FILLED ROOM

Hose Connecting Stove Found to Have Slipped From Wall Jet, With Cocks of Stove All Closed.

John and Mary Brady, an elderly couple, were found dead from gas asphyxiation at 9 o'clock this morning in their room on the third floor of a rooming house at 3055 Stanton avenue, conducted by Mrs. Elsie Lynch.

Mrs. Lynch suspected something was wrong when she went to the room this morning to collect rent. The couple had always promptly paid their rent on Saturdays, but when Mrs. Lynch went there Saturday afternoon there was no response to her knock. This morning she found the door locked and called a policeman, who entered through a rear window from an adjoining roof. He found the room full of gas and gas escaping from an open wall jet, from which a gas plate hose connection had slipped. The gas cocks of the plate were closed, indicating that asphyxiation was accidental. In a bed in a far corner of the room were Mr. and Mrs. Brady. Mrs. Brady's hand was on the knob of the door to a connecting room and it appeared that she had tried to open it.

Mrs. Lynch said the couple came there three months ago, and that both had worked at odd jobs.

COLUMBIA (MO.) MAN MISSING

Police Asked to Find Roy Murray, Who Disappeared Friday.
Chief of Police O'Brien today received a letter from Col. J. A. Hudson of Columbia, Mo., requesting that a search be made for Roy Murray, 26 years old, of Columbia, who disappeared from that town last Friday and has not been heard from since. When last seen at Columbia Murray was driving a Dodge automobile, dealer's license D455. In the car were two men clad in soldiers' uniforms.
Col. Hudson writes that friends of Murray in Columbia have reason to believe he was forced to drive the men from Columbia, departing in the direction of St. Louis. The description of Murray is 5 feet 10 inches tall, weight 165 pounds, clad in brown suit, gray cap and tan shoes.

PRIZES ARE AWARDED IN ART COMPETITION

New York Judges Pass on Eighth Annual Display at Artists' Guild Here.

Award of prizes in the eighth annual art competition of the St. Louis Art Guild were announced last night by a jury of three New York artists who judged the entries. The 14 prizes totaled $1450.

Thirty artists, all St. Louisans, were represented by 97 paintings and nine pieces of sculpture, none of which ever had been entered in competition in St. Louis before. The prize winners will remain on exhibition at the Artists' Guild until January.

Awards by New York Judges.

The judges were Willard L. Metcalf, Paul Dougherty and Robert Altman, who were brought from New York to insure an impartial judgment of the exhibits. Their awards were as follows:

St. Louis Art League prize of $300 to O. E. Berninghaus, for "The Gossamer."

John L. Scott Memorial prize of $100 to Fred G. Carpenter, for "A Church in Spain."

St. Louis Chamber of Commerce purchase prize of $150 to Paul F. Bernhardt, for "A Source of Industrial Power."

Frederick O. Sylvester prize of $50 for landscape to Frank Nuderscher, for "Mist and Sunshine."

Other New Prizes.

Thomas W. Fry prize of $50 for landscape to Charles F. Galt, for "Riverside Drive."

Hugo W. Koehler prize of $50 for landscape to Mrs. K. E. Cherry, for "View From the Hillsides."

Carl Wimsa prize of $100 for figure painting to G. von Schlegel, for "Red Haired Girl."

A decoration prize of $100 to E. H. Wuerpel, for "Mural."

J. Dwight Bridge prize of $50 for sculpture to Victor Holm, for "Martin Luther."

Harry C. Ives prize of $100 for sculpture, to Miss Nancy Coonsman, for "Baby Fountain."

Edward Mallinckrodt prize of $50 for water color, to Mildred Bailey, for "Penguin."

Edward Mallinckrodt prize of $50 for portrait, to Emilie Gross, for "Bentley."

Rule of the Competition.

It is a rule of the competitions that no artist can win prize for the same class two years in succession. Miss Gisella Loeffler won a prize for water color last year. This time a special prize of $50 was offered by Samuel Sherer, not subject to the succession rule, and she entered and won it.

(As usual, a sporting feature accompanied the competition. Members of the guild each contributed a dime to a "pot" and each submitted a list of their choices for prizes, the one who picked the most winners to get the money. Mrs. Montgomery Schuyler and Dr. Gustave Lipman tied.

The judges commented on the small number of sculpture entries, and said that a competition in the "Bust" would have attracted many more entries by sculptors.

T. S. Japan Negotiations.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 29.—Negotiations between Japan and the United States will be discussed informally with members of Senate and House committees, according to a telegram to Gov. Thomas E. Campbell from Secretary of State Colby received at the State House.

CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY LUNCHEON TOMORROW

Election of Officers Also to Be Held at Statter-Yale Quartet to Sing.

A event of combined social and humane interest will be the annual luncheon and election of officers of the Children's Aid Society tomorrow at the Statter Hotel. Mrs. George C. Hitchcock, president of the Children's Aid, will preside and Dr. Borden S. Veeder will talk on the care of dependent children.

Old Christmas carols will be sung by the Yale Quartet at the luncheon and a foretaste of the annual Christmas eve festival when the carol singing goes from house to house singing where they find a lighted candle shining in a window.

Among the hostesses for the luncheon will be Meses. Hitchcock, Guido, Pantaleoni, Charles Nagel, Greenfield Shuler, Sidney Schwab, Elms-Michael, Marion C. Bloom, C. T. D. Miller, F. E. Eisenman, Wade Childress, Lee Hildebrand, S. B. McPherson, Louis J. Brooks, Le de Saint Carlton and Tom Francis, Meses Sarah Tower and Florence Van-Sickler.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Laura Gumbiner of Peoria, Ill., to Samuel A. Legner of 280 Skinker road.

A recital tea will be given Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, Skinker road and Waterman avenue. A program will be given by Mrs. Bessie Brown Ricker.

The annual meeting of the Jefferson Chapter, D. A. R., was held Nov. 15, at the home of Mrs. F. R. Long, 5950 Enright avenue. Mrs. John E. Hubbs was assisting hostess. Reports of all officers and committees were submitted, also reports of the

MILK

The Laplanders in the far north of Europe get their milk from the reindeer.

The natives in the Deserts of Sahara and Arabia drink the milk of camels.

The wandering Tartar tribes of western Asia live largely on mare's milk.

But the patrons of CHILDS fare best of all, for they enjoy the rich milk of the cow.

Drive Away Headache

Rub Musterole on Forehead and Temples

A headache remedy without the dangers of "headache medicine." Relieves headache and that miserable feeling from colds or congestion. And it acts at once! Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister. Used only externally, and in no way can it affect stomach and heart, as some internal medicines do. Excellent for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, all pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). 25c and 65c jars; hospital size $3.

Musterole

State conference which convened in St. Louis in October. Mrs. J. T. Moss, State Regent, gave a talk on the plans of the National Society, D. A. R., which include work for the Americanization of foreigners and native-born, the purchase of a great painting which is to be presented by the Daughters to the War Memorial Museum, and the erection of a fountain at Plymouth, Mass., in honor of the Pilgrim Fathers and the Pilgrim Mothers.

The following officers were elected: Regent, Mrs. A. E. Raton; First Vice Regent, Mrs. J. P. Higgins; Second Vice Regent, Mrs. J. M. Battle; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Harry L. King; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. C. Louis Diesterweg; Registrar, Mrs. John Craig; Historian, Mrs. Frank P. Chandler; Treasurer, Mrs. W. J. Kilne; Directors, Mrs. James Blythe, Mrs. J. E. Cartwright, Mrs. E. E. Hickok, Mrs. J. E. Hubbs, Mrs. J. M. Taylor.

A fashionable audience will attend the third American performance of the new choral symphony, "The Bells," by Rachmaninoff, which will be given Tuesday night this week at the Odéon by the St. Louis Pageant Choral Society, assisted by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra and a quartet of grand opera stars. Mr. and Mrs. George D. Markham, Mrs. J. H. Morton and Mr. and Mrs. George W. Simmons are among those who will have large box parties, and other box holders are: Mrs. W. T. Hill, Mgr. J. J. Tannath, Mr. and Mrs. Garfield D. Merner, Mrs. Charles E. Sharp, Mrs. Oscar Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Gundlach, Mrs. Frederick Fischer, Mrs. Andrew Sproule, Mrs. Howard Watson, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hennig, Hugo A. Koehler, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald B. O'Reilly, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Thomy, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. the aid of a borrowed instrument of rare tone quality, which fairly sang the score assigned to it, he gave a masterful rendition of Leon Boellmann's "Symphonic Variations," with full orchestral accompaniment. This composition was admittedly written to test the virtuosity of the performer and calls for speed, flexibility and digital dexterity approaching those of the violin player. Steinidel met the requirements so well that the consequent applause took on the character of an ovation. For an encore he played to piano accompaniment Jerald's "Gypsy Dance." The program throughout was of the distinctly "popular" type, tuneful and melodious, including Chabrier's "Marche Joyeuse," Brahms' Hungarian Dances, 1, 2 and 3; Liszt's "Baba Yaga" tone pictures; the andante and minuet from "Ariane," the Sevillana, from "Don Cesar de Bazan," and Suite No. 2 from "Carmen."

For encore numbers the orchestra played Gillet's "The Mill" and Cham-made's "Scarf Dance."

'NOT SO LONG AGO' IS CLEAN, CHARMING PLAY
Comedy of Fanny and Satire
Stars Eva Le Gallienne and Sidney Blackmer.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

A last play which it is possible warmly to commend! It is "Not So Long Ago" by Arthur Richman, and it bears a week's engagement last night at the Shubert-Jefferson. Humor, fancy and romance abound in it, together with a tang of sharp, salutary satire. Here, we are reminded, with may have sweetened instead of vulgarized, and love may be exquisite, not brutish. For once, at so theatrical managers have dealt fairly with the long-suffering St. Louis public by sending the identical production and virtually the same cast—a carefully selected one—with which this play tried its fortunes on Broadway. A clean and mirthful comedy, handsomely mounted, winningly acted.

It seems nowadays to be considered fatal for a theatrical show to possess a single idea. "Not So Long Ago" has one, and it is nothing less exotic and daring than an effort to vindicate the rights of the dreamer against a savagely materialistic society. The poets, romancers and inventors—whom the successful and want to call liars and failures—are pitted against business and snobbery.

'NOT SO LONG AGO' IS CLEAN, CHARMING PLAY

Comedy of Fancy and Satire
Stars Eva Le Gallienne and Sidney Blackmer.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

A last play which it is possible warmly to commend. It is "Not So Long Ago," by Arthur Richman, and it began a week's engagement last night at the Shubert-Jefferson. Humor, fancy and romance abound in it, together with a tang of sharp, salutary satire. Here, we are reminded, wit may have sweetness instead of vulgarity, and love may be exquisite, not brutish. For once, also, theatrical managers have dealt fairly with the long-suffering St. Louis public by sending the identical production and virtually the same cast—a carefully selected one—with which this play tried its fortunes on Broadway. A clean and mirthful comedy, handsomely mounted, winningly acted.

It seems nowadays to be considered fatal for a theatrical show to possess a single idea. "Not So Long Ago" has one, and it is nothing less exotic and daring than an effort to vindicate the rights of the dreamer against a savagely materialistic society. The poets, romancers and inventors—whom the successful are wont to call liars and failures—are pitted against business and snobbery;

and the playwright flies in the face of every dogma of American life by awarding victory to the dwellers in the clouds. Poetry and merriment both are gained by the clever device of laying the scene in New York of the seventies. The heroine is Elsie Dover, daughter of a defrauded inventor; she is compelled to work as seamstress for the aristocratic Ballards, who have lost most of their money. Mrs. Ballard and her daughter, Ursula, are virulent fortune-hunters and snobs of the first water; a son, Billy, has been rejected by the equally snobbish Rosamond Gill.

Society and the Poetess. Elsie comes like the balm of spring into this wintry world of withered feelings, and Elsie is by way of being a poet. That is, she has her being in a realm of dreams of her own making; and her imagination is so vivid that, without the least consciousness of mendacity, she often relates her dreams to others as facts. Her reveries take the form of a romance between herself and the heir of the Ballards, who has never spoken to her except once, to ask where his mother was.

Under the creative urge of the artist, Elsie labors to make her poem perfect in every detail. She buys flowers and books, and says that Billy gave them to her, and entrances her girl friends with marvelous tales, couched in stilted language from the era's novels, of trips to the Art Museum, of carriage rides, of luncheons at the Ballard home.

The unconscious Billy is more or less stupefied when he first discovers the role he has been playing in this imaginary lyric; but he himself has written verses, and rises nobly to the opportunity. "You lie like an angel!" he exclaims adoringly to Elsie, and insists upon marrying the seamstress in defiance of his mother and sister. The latter are punished when wealthy Rupert Hancock, incensed at their cruelty to Elsie and Billy, breaks his engagement to Ursula. Rupert has previously admitted that his hobby is sociology. Mother and daughter are struck with consternation at learning that this new-fangled term he means "amalgamation of the classes." Rosamond Gill also comes in for bitter chastisement. "Business Man" Drawn With Malice.

There is heartfelt malice in Richman's drawing of Billy's rival, one Sam Robinson, a hustling, pushing and crass young drummer of the type which our weekly fiction has essayed to erect into a national hero. Sam prides himself on being a "business man," and the satire lies in the egregious blunders of judgment which he makes in his own field. He deplores the fact that part of the Hancock wealth has been invested in real estate at Forty-second street and Broadway. "It will never amount to anything," he declares; "I know what I'm talking about; I've been in the real estate business." He is similarly positive that bicycles will have no future, that the cost of living will never be higher, and that stationary bathtubs will never be used, on the ground that it is disgustingly immoral to have bathtubs which cannot be folded up and hidden away. It is with unmistakable zest that the playwright has Sam, in the last act, kicked out of the Ballard home.

The part of Elsie is most felicitously played by charming Eva Gallienne, daughter of the celebrated poet, Richard Le Gallienne. The quiet droolery, the quaint whimsicality and the eloquent facial expression of Sidney Blackmer, in the part of Billy Ballard, are wholly delightful. George H. Trader, as the pathetic old inventor, Thomas Mitchell, the bumptious Sam Robinson, Alice Bromley Wilson, as Mrs. Ballard, and Mary Kennedy, as Rosamond Gill, repeated their New York successes in these roles. Betty Linley has succeeded both Martin as Ursula Ballard, and B. N. Lewin, as Rupert Hancock, is scarcely so effective as was Gilbert Douglas in the original cast. Part of the pleasure of the evening was in seeing the cordial relish with which the big audience received the play.

ANTI-AMERICAN SENTIMENT IN AUSTRALIA, M'CORMACK SAYS

Irish Tenor Declares He Has Been Victim of "Organized Conspiracy" There and in England. Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch. PARIS, Nov. 29.—"Australia is bitterly anti-American, and my experience there was heartbreaking," said John McCormack, Irish tenor, who arrived in Paris Saturday to fill an engagement with the Conservatoire Orchestra. "I have been a victim of organized conspiracy in both Australia and England. Australia, once a delightful country, is now divided between Catholics and Protestants, who hate each other, and I became the chosen victim of the Protestant jingo party. They forced me to cancel half of my concerts, and when I arrived in England I saw I would meet with a similar reception from the jingoes there, so I likewise abandoned my English concerts. "The Irish question is going from bad to worse. England lacks the statesman big and generous to say, 'Ireland has the right to be free, yet we are necessary to one another and have lived together so long that we ought to get together and learn to understand and trust each other.' "If England would only say this I am sure Ireland would at once agree that the two nations' fortunes are linked. Sentiment plays a tremendous part in Ireland, and the mere recognition by England of Irish rights would make the two nations one. Peace can come in Ireland only if England is generous. I am, however, intensely sorry over the Irish attack on the Union Club. The Irish already have America's sympathy, and such incidents can only do harm."

McCormack leaves next week to spend some time on the Riviera, returning to America in April.

WM. ROCK'S REVUE IS ALL VAUDEVILLE

Marion Sunshine and the Hart Sisters Bright Spots in Show at American Theater.

William Rock of the old-time vaudeville team of Rock and Fulton; Billy E. Van, late of vaudeville; James J. Corbett, pugilist and vaudeville; Avey and O'Neil, vaudeville black-face comedians; Irene and Bernice Hart of the vaudeville stage and Marion Sunshine, who began her career as one of the vaudeville team of Tempest and Sunshine, make up the important part of the cast of Rock's Revue of 1929, which came to the American Theater last night.

Under the circumstances, as might be expected, some two and a half hours of vaudeville is the result, presented with a lot of pretty girls and some striking scenery and interspersed with some more vaudeville by some clever, if less well known, variety actors and actresses. Perhaps there is a little too much vaudeville, for although it is difficult to put your finger on exactly what is the matter with the Revue, it is one of those shows which certainly entertain but yet fail to please completely.

Billy Van is very, very funny throughout the performance, although he begins his part of the entertainment by being a bit "rough." Corbett is Corbett, and Rock himself a clever dancer and entertainer, leaves most of the actual work to his company.

The really bright spots center around Marion Sunshine, who is one of the daintiest and most pleasing young women on the stage today, and Irene and Bernice Hart, who announce that they are there to harmonize and who do—in a manner all their own.

A Chinese young woman sings very well, indeed, in her native tongue and in perfect English, and Ernestine Myers does an Oriental dance in which she wears as close to nothing as the law permits. One of the brightest bits of the show is Rock's English Tommy song, which, however, fails to really "get over," due to the fact that it is so quietly done in the midst of a great deal of noisier acts.

PUBLIC SCHOOL DANCES CAUSE OF GIRLS' FALL, WOMAN SAYS

Head of Springfield (Ill.) Redemption Home Refuses to Accept "New Money" Contributions.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 28.—

Ascribing public school dances as the first cause of the downfall of "fully half the girls in our care," Mrs. Henrietta Hunt, superintendent of the Springfield Redemption Home, has refused to accept contributions of "dance money" from the Springfield Improvement League. The league had advertised a "Redemption Home benefit dance," for next Tuesday, receipts from which were to go entirely to the home.

Mrs. Hunt informed the league officers that the institution would accept none of the "benefit" fund. "I notified the league," Mrs. Hunt said, "that I would accept any free will offering. But we cannot think of taking money secured at dances. Dancing drags down more girls than anything else, fully half of those who came to us last year went wrong at the public school dances right here in Springfield. I believe it is high time someone was coming out against such evil."

Following this rebuke the president of the league declared the dance would "go ahead as planned." "But not one cent will go to Redemption Home," she added.

METHODIST BISHOPS NOT TO CONSIDER SUNDAY 'BLUE LAWS'

Bishop Berry Makes Announcement; Previous Report Said They Had Indorsed Plan.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 28.—Bishop Joseph Berry today declared that the House of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church in session here would not deal with the program outlined by the Lord's Day Alliance for a strict enforcement of Sunday "blue laws."

It previously had been reported that the campaign about to be instituted by the Lord's Day Alliance had received the approval of the House of Bishops.

The campaign, if successful, would result in the closing of all stores on Sunday, prohibit the playing of all games, stop the running of trains and the publication of newspapers. The House of Bishops received a communication from Frank Gilmore, executive secretary of the Actors' Equity Association, expressing on behalf of that organization indignation at the stand taken by the Methodist Church with respect to dancers and dancing masters and inquiring if persons in the theatrical profession are equally barred from membership in the Methodist Church. The church will soon begin a nationwide appeal for candidates for the ministry, it was announced. The present "shortage" in ministers was said to be unprecedented.

DR. INFROIT, FAMOUS SURGEON AND X-RAY SPECIALIST, DIES

In 1915 Announcement Was Made in Paris He Had Extracted Bullet From Soldier's Heart.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 28.—The death of Dr. Charles Infroit, famous surgeon and X-ray specialist, is announced here today. Death is believed to have been caused by complications following the amputation last August of the doctor's right arm and left wrist because of infections developed by the constant use of the X-ray.

One of M. Infroit's hands became infected about 20 years ago, and since that time he has undergone 24 operations, 22 of which were performed in the last 10 years.

Announcement in 1915 in the world.

Academy of Medicine of Paris that Dr. Infroit had extracted a shrapnel bullet from the heart of a soldier, was read with interest throughout the world.

MAN FALLS DEAD AT STATION

A man identified through letters found in his pockets as Arthur Brewer, 35 years old, of West Alton, Mo., fell dead in the midway of Union Station at 4:15 p. m. yesterday. He apparently was on his way from West Alton to Blytheville, Ark. The body was taken to the Morgue. A bottle of a sedative was found in his pockets.

Conference Over Greece Delayed.

LONDON, Nov. 28.—The conference between Premiers Lloyd George and Leygues have been temporarily suspended, owing to the necessity of the French Premier's return to Paris. He hopes to return to London Wednesday morning. Count Senozza, Italian Foreign Minister, who is to take part in the conference with the Premiers, arrived in London last night.

To Avoid Rough, Coarse, Chapped, Blotchy Skin

Most skins require constant grooming at this season to keep them from becoming unduly red, blotchy, coarse, rough, or harsh, or if such condition has developed to overcome it. In such cases it is particularly inadvisable to keep piling on cosmetics which clog the pores and make the complexion worse than ever. It is a lot more sensible to use ordinary macerated wax, which literally absorbs a spotted complexion. Apply the wax, in cold cream, before retiring. Next morning, in washing it off, you'll wash away the wax, and with it the blotchy, red, and four-like particles of the unsightly cuticle. Repeat for a week or more and you'll have so entirely new skin—white, sparkling and beautiful as a child's. One ounce of macerated wax, procurable at any drugstore, is all you'll need.

"I Recommend It for Nutrition"

A food talk by
A. E. Hoffman

Snowy coconut fat is inviting, appetizing, very digestible and highly nutritious. It is the basis of Troco.

It is churned with pure, twice-pasteurized milk, from which it gets the sweet, delicate butter flavor.

This combination of two of Nature's food standbys results in a food of highest value.

I recommend it for nutrition as well as flavor.

I learned to make Troco by making butter for 30 years. I have made and judged butter and taught butter making at leading dairy schools.

Since Troco is churned like butter, with tasteless, neutral coconut fat replacing butter fat, this 30 years has taught me how to perfect Troco, and give it the sweet deliciousness which makes a dainty dairy product the most appreciated of all foods.

You will find Troco at leading dealers who naturally feature the best.

It may cost a few cents more than other brands, just as fancy butter always commands a premium.

SAYS EUROPE HAS LOST CONFIDENCE IN AMERICA

Y. M. C. A. Worker Tells of Feeling Toward U. S. for Failing to Ratify Treaty.

G. C. Stearns, 3584 Juniata street, who has returned home after three years service with the International Y. M. C. A. in France and other foreign countries told a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that the people of Europe are quick to express in conversation their disappointment in the United States not ratifying the peace treaty. They look upon it as presumptuous egotism on the part of the United States in refusing to sign a treaty already ratified by 30 nations, he declared.

"The high ideals with which the United States entered the war are considered as hypocritical camouflage to attain world notoriety, and no amount of explanation will change their opinions," he said. "The election of Harding for President means only one thing to a European, and that is that a policy of selfish isolation instead of brotherly co-operation in world humanitarianism and civilization is to be permanently adopted by the United States."

"Europe has lost confidence in the United States, and it will take years for our nation to regain its former prestige."

Sterns spent several months in Turkey, and in referring to the Armenian and Turkish situation said that no one there could understand why the United States did not take the mandate over Turkey and Armenia. By taking the mandate over Turkey, the United States could have placed its merchant marine on the Black Sea and the Mediterranean Sea and given it an opportunity to compete for commerce of Russia, Ukraine and Poland, which should be enormous in the near future, he pointed out.

Touching on the post-dictator's government of Fiume, he said the people were hoping in some way for deliverance from his reign. The people picture him as the "worst tyrant they have known in over a century," he said.

He declared that France was almost in a hopeless condition, with a national debt of $25,000,000,000, an $8,000,000 loan sunk in Russia, and expensive army of occupation, and with the French franc worth less than one-third pre-war value.

"A Little Brother to the Rich" So to Speak, yet "Democratic"

THAT'S what everybody likes about our "Brass Tacks" proposition on the Lowest-Priced Gulbransen. It's a thoroughbred, born and brought up with "quality folks," with the appearance, voice and manners you'd expect. Yet its price is "Democratic" down to "Brass Tacks."

It's no accident that we are able to offer such a remarkable instrument at such a price as $595. It's the result of a deliberate, studied effort. We have gone through a score of big factories. Analyzed quality to the last inch. Compared prices till we got down to "Brass Tacks," and here is the answer: the champion player-piano value of all America is in our store for you

It's the Lowest-Priced Gulbransen

Judge this Lowest-Priced Gulbransen with your eyes and ears, your use of it, and your common sense. Compare with any other player-piano you know, including the highest priced Gulbransen. Set what you think would be a rock bottom "Brass Tacks" price for such an instrument today. We are satisfied you would be willing to pay far more than $595. But the point is, you don't have to!

You can get this wonderful sweet toned, handsome looking, easy playing, durable, guaranteed Gulbransen for $595 because it's "a little brother to the rich"—built right alongside the "millionaires" model Gulbransen at $750. It is easier for the great Gulbransen factory to put their standard, high grade parts into this instrument than to build special cheaper parts. Then too, it is priced extra close to get it down to "Brass Tacks" to meet your demand for extra value. We are certain no player-piano is offered today with as small a margin in it for maker and dealer as in this $595 Gulbransen.

Look at it side by side with the "millionaires" model at $750. Both are on display in our store. You would be as likely to select one as the other on appearances. There are differences, of course, but in things not vital to you. Play them both—they have the same marvelous ease. Both have a sweet singing tone such as artists prefer. You'll have to admit that such an instrument at $595 is certainly getting down to "Brass Tacks."

THIS WEEK we are showing a special selection of unusually handsome cases of the Lowest-Priced Gulbransen—genuine Mahogany, Burl Walnut, three kinds of Oak, satin and mirror-polish finishes—chosen for this "Brass Tacks" sale.

TODAY AND TOMORROW we are demonstrating the famous Martin Method instruction rolls; prepared for the Gulbransen Player by John Martin, the concert player-pianist. These rolls show you how your playing of the Gulbransen can be made to sound like expert hand-playing—and it's easy! Come and hear.

cancelled and that the mortgage will be further reduced each year, without releasing any of the real estate security.)

SECURITY VALUED IN EXCESS OF $600,000

THESE NOTES are the obligation of M. D. and Robert M. Scott and are secured by a first deed of trust in the nature of a mortgage on lot of ground in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma, together with the improvements erected thereon. The lot is the northeast corner of Main and Hudson streets, being 75 feet by 140 feet. This is one of the best business corners in Oklahoma City. A conservative value of the ground alone is $150,000.

THE IMPROVEMENTS consist of a modern eight-story fireproof department store building.
The building has just been completed and is a most substantial and impressive structure. It is the largest and finest building in the State of Oklahoma used for department store purposes. Its cost, exclusive of the ground, was in excess of $450,000.

THE PROPERTY is under lease for a term of 25 years to the Scott-Halliburton Co. at a rental of $10,000 per annum. NET, the lessee paying all taxes and insurance during the term of the lease.
The Scott-Halliburton Co. conducts the largest department store in Oklahoma City. It stands very high among the trade and its financial responsibility is excellent. This lease has been assigned to the Mercantile Trust Company, Trustee, as additional security for the noteholder.

TITLE examined and mortgage papers prepared by our own Legal Department. Amble fire and tornado insurance, with mortgage clause payable to Mercantile Trust Company, Trustee, has been deposited with us.

ON ACCOUNT of the large margin of security, the location of the property and the character of the building, together with the additional security by reason of the assignment of the lease, we recommend these notes as a particularly sound investment.

CHARGE AGAINST 4 IN GEORGIA MURDER CASE

Warrant for Wife of Attorney Sworn Out Today; Victim's Former Wife in Jail.

By the Associated Press.
MACON, Ga., Nov. 29.—Mrs. F.
E. Elmer, arrested at Fort Valley, Ga., Saturday, on a warrant charging her with the murder of her former husband, Fred D. Shepard, known as the "Georgia Peach King," was placed in the county jail here and was said to be in a highly nervous state. She was arrested at the conclusion of the inquest at Fort Valley Saturday, at which expert testimony was presented to show the presence of poison in the dead man's viscera.

A warrant for the arrest of Mrs.
Anna P. Cuts, wife of an attorney of Fitzgerald, Ga., was sworn out here today. The warrant charges
Mrs. Cuts with murder in connection with the death of Shepard.

Two other persons, Mrs. Ione Henry, Mrs. Elmer's sister, and Ernest Hopson, Mrs. Elmer's son by a former marriage, also were arrested at Fort Valley in connection with the case. They were visiting at the Shepard home when Shepard was stricken with the illness that caused his death.

Counsel for Mrs. Elmer announced that her husband, Dr. Elmer, of Jacksonville, Fla., was en route to Macon. Dr. Elmer, he added, was at one time private physician to a former President of Mexico, and left that country because of political disturbances. He denied reports that the physician was of Mexican birth or that he had been Governor at one time of a state in Mexico.

Mrs. Elmer denied herself to callers, although many persons called at the jail to see her.

Officials of the Solicitor-General's office today said they were investigating charges made by Frederick Crandall, nephew of Shepard, that Crandall had been poisoned by drinking whisky found in the automobile in which Shepard was brought to a hospital here where he died last June.

Dr. M. S. Brown, who attended Crandall, said in a statement that at the time he did not believe Crandall had been poisoned, but that he later had changed his mind.

K. OF C. AGAINST ELIMINATION OF AMUSEMENTS ON SUNDAY

Supreme Knight J. A. Flaherty in St.
Louis a Few Minutes Today on Way to Kansas City.

James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus, stopping a few minutes in St. Louis today on his way to Kansas City, said that members of the Knights of Columbus and Catholics in general would oppose the elimination of amusements and sports on Sunday, as has been suggested to the Legislatures of 39 States by The Lord's Day Alliance.

"We do not oppose sane reforms," said Flaherty, "but we do not believe in a 'blue' Sunday. The Catholic view of the Sabbath is that it is primarily a day of devotion, but that after the day's devotions have been observed there is no harm in innocent relaxation. We do not believe in stopping ball games or closing theaters whose performances are not in themselves objectionable."

Flaherty is making a tour of the country, visiting the principal jurisdictions of the Knights of Columbus.
He departed for Kansas City at 9 a.
m., accompanied by Alderman Luke E. Hart, ranking St. Louis officer of the order.

NEW POSTOFFICE TO BE NAMED THE FESTUS J. WADE BRANCH

Office at Natural Bridge and Union Avenues Expected to Be Opened About Jan. 1.

The new postoffice for the northwest industrial district, under construction at the northeast corner of Union and Natural Bridge avenues, will be named the Festus J.
Wade branch, in honor of the president of the Mercantile Trust Co., which was largely instrumental in financing factory construction in the district.

Concerning Wade's work for the district, Postmaster Selph's announcement said:

"The activities of Wade during the war and his prominent connection with many of the leading business concerns of the city, make it very appropriate at this time to recognize his usefulness to our splendid city, and to perpetuate his memory in years to come by naming a branch an important part of the Government, in his honor."

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way.
When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.
Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lax don'tcare feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.
Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

BEIGIAN RUINS TO REMAIN UNTIL MEMORIAL IS CHOSEN

LONDON, Nov. 29.—The Belgian Government has agreed to leave the famous Cloth Hall, the cathedral and the ramparts of the town in their existing state until the British Government decides what kind of a memorial to erect to the troops who fought there.

This fact has been announced by Premier Lloyd George in response to a suggestion in the House of Commons that the Cloth Hall be preserved as a memorial to the British soldiers who participated in the heroic defense of that city.

BOARD MEMBERS OF JOURNALISM SCHOOL

Trustees of Columbia University Make Appointments and Announce Progress.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—On the nomination of the Advisory Board of the School of Journalism the trustees of Columbia University, it was announced yesterday, have appointed Joseph Pulitzer as a member of the board as a representative of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch for a term of four years.

The other members of the board are: Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University; Solomon G. Griffin, Springfield (Mass.) Republican; John Langdon Heaton, the New York World; George S. Johnson, St. Louis Post-Dispatch; Victor Forrester Lawson, Chicago Daily News; Charles Ransom Miller, New York Times; Edward Page Mitchell, New York Sun; Ralph Pulitzer, the New York World; Melville Stone, Associated Press; Charles H. Taylor, Boston Globe; and Samuel Calvin Wells, Philadelphia Press.

A statement issued at the university calls attention to the progress in the school and to the changes made during the last year. The statement says that the school, though still in its infancy, has passed the experimental stage and is now formally established on a foundation of scholarship and professional knowledge.

Tribute is paid to Dr. Talbot Williams, first director of the school, who on becoming professor emeritus was succeeded by the associate director, Dr. John W. Cunliffe.

Additions to the teaching staff during the past year have greatly strengthened the curriculum. It is stated, and have added to the influence of the school in the newspaper field. A broadening of the summer program in journalism also was announced.

Greater activity in research, especially in the scientific schools, is reported at the university. In this connection the winners of the Ernest Kempton Adams research fellowships are announced by the trustees. They are Dr. Albert P. Williams, professor of physics, and Dr. Frederick Barry, formerly instructor in chemistry.

The Ernest Kempton Adams research fellowship was founded in 1905 by Edward Dean Adams in memory of his son, Ernest Kempton Adams. The provision of the fellowship is that its incumbent "shall prosecute researches either in Columbia University or elsewhere, in the physical sciences, in psychology or in their practical applications."

COCOANUT BLANC MANGE

4 cups milk	Lemon Sauce
1/2 cup cornstarch	2 teaspoons cornstarch
1/2 cup sugar	1 cup sugar
3 egg whites	1 cup hot water
1/4 teaspoon salt	1 tablespoon butter
1 cup Dromedary Cocoanut	1 egg yolk
1 teaspoon vanilla extract	1 lemon

For pudding: Scald milk, add cornstarch mixed with sugar, cook ten minutes, then add cocoanut, vanilla and whites of eggs beaten with salt. Pour into a wet mould and set aside to chill. Turn out, decorate with Dromedary Cocoanut and serve with Lemon Sauce made as follows: Mix cornstarch with sugar, add water gradually, and cook eight minutes, stirring constantly. Add grated rind and strained juice of lemon, butter, and yolk of egg. Cool before serving.

The Most Competitive Business in the World

—said Judge Fred W. Freeman recently. Continuing, he added: "The oil business today in all its phases from production to refining, to marketing, is the most competitive business in the world."

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is but one of 16,000 organizations interested in the petroleum industry in the United States. Each of these is performing a useful service or it would not be in business. Competition eliminates the unfit in the oil business, as it eliminates the unfit in every other line of endeavor.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is here today because it has made good.

The energy of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is concentrated on making good in a big, constructive way.

The territory served is probably the most important farming territory in the world. The Company's opportunity for service is great, and the need for its service is ever present.

Every year the farmers of the Middle West need petroleum products in greater volume. They demand products of standard quality, delivered at regular intervals and at reasonable prices. Only through a complete organization of men, trained by years of experience, can so complicated and important a service be rendered.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is such an organization, and by concentrated, co-ordinated effort, from refiner to tank wagon delivery, it is able to render a service to the farmers and others who depend upon the Company for material which enables them to perform tasks essential to the public welfare.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is directed by a group of seven business men, trained in every phase of the oil industry, and is operated by 23,000 loyal men and women, who are devoting their lives to the business.

Its owners, the stockholders, are 5526 in number, no one of whom owns as much as 10 percent of the total stock.

Any one may become a part owner in this Company, by buying its stock in the open market.

SUBSCRIPTIONS TO FUND FOR RELIEF OF DISTRESS IN IRELAND

The Rev. Father Pathe Declares
Major Macksway Was Great Martyr.

Subscriptions to a fund for the relief of distress in Ireland were taken last night at a meeting of the St. Louis Council of the Friends of Irish Freedom at St. Mark's Hall, Page boulevard and Academy avenue. Cards which were signed pledged the signers to continue paying a certain amount per month until the Red Cross extends its much-needed aid to the hungry, homeless victims of British tyranny in Ireland.

As the Red Cross is organized under the authority of this Government, the Red Cross does not send aid to Ireland in the absence of an invitation from the British Government.

The Rev. Father Michael Pathe, pastor of St. Alphonsus Church, declared the late Lord Mayor, MacSwiney of Cork was the greatest martyr since Jesus Christ, and he condemned Americans of Irish extraction who are indifferent to what is going on in that country. Alderman Luke Hart, who recently returned from Europe, also spoke.

Sluggish blood clogged with poisons makes you lazy. You never feel like getting up in the morning. And when you do get up, you miss that feeling of refreshing rest. You feel more tired than when you went to bed. After a good night's sleep, you should get up with a spring, feeling alive, renewed, refreshed.

And you would, too, if your blood were full of red corpuscles. Your complexions would look fresh, your eyes bright and clear; you would feel the warm tingle of good health.

Look to your blood if you have that lazy, heavy feeling in the morning.
Begin taking Pepto-Mangan—the ideal tonic. It has blood-building properties that pick you up and give you strength.

Pepto-Mangan is widely and heartily endorsed by physicians. It is effective and easy to take. It is prepared in both liquid and tablet form.
Both have the same medicinal properties.

Sold at any drug store. But be sure you get the genuine Pepto-Mangan—
"Gude's." Ask for it by the full name and be sure the full name,
"Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on the package.

LINCOLN'S OLD HOME
BEING RESTORED

Village of New Salem, With Huts Rebuilt, Will Be Used as Park.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 29.—

Restoration of the village of New Salem, where Abraham Lincoln worked as grocery clerk, fell in love with Ann Rutledge, carried the postoffice in his hat and whipped the champion of the "Clary's Grove boys," will be completed by next spring, and with the addition of the Old Salem museum, will be thrown open as the Old Salem State Park, according to announcement of State Architect Edgar Martin.

Log huts, as they were in Lincoln's day, have been rebuilt. Their location and arrangement is exact.
Foundations were found undisturbed except by the wear of time, and the houses reconstructed over them. Atmosphere of 1837 to 1837 in so far as possible is re-embodied. The store where Lincoln was clerk, the mill on Sangamon River and all other structures of "New Salem," so rich in memories of the great American, have been completely restored and lack only the finishing touches.

Beside reproducing the actual village, the State has added a large frame house of the better class in Lincoln's day, which will serve as a State Museum to house Lincoln relics. This house is modeled after a fine old residence in St. Genevieve, Mo., which village Martin said is as a town lifted bodily out of the last century. The architecture is of the best of Lincoln's day.

Contracts for the wiring, heating and plumbing of the museum have just been let.

In restoring New Salem the department was forced to follow the same tactics used in restoration of more ancient cities. New Salem dwindled rapidly after Lincoln moved away, and shortly after 1837 was entirely deserted. When the last general assembly authorized the creation of the Old Salem State Park, the weather-beaten foundations could be found.

The 42 acres of the restored village and State Park are 23 miles northwest of Springfield, in Menard County.

OPPOSES WHITE BABY CLOTHES

Columbia University Man Says White Is Injurious to Eyes.

By the Associated Press.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 29.—"Do not dress your baby in white garments if you want the child to have good eyes," was the admonition of Dr. Frederick A. Wolf, Columbia University, New York, in an address here before the convention of the Kentucky Association of Optometrists.

Extensive use of white in furnishing baby carriages and nurseries is detrimental to the eyes of children, Dr. Wolf said. "Let a grown person," he added, "wearing a white suit sit in the bright sunlight and the glare will make him squint; yet you place your child in a white carriage, set it in the sun and expect the baby to rest peacefully."

Bread Reduced Cent a Loaf.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 29.—The price of bread in Philadelphia will be reduced 1 cent a loaf Dec. 1, Frank B. McLain, Fair Price Commissioner, announces. The present price is 11 cents for a one-pound loaf and 15 cents for a 24-ounce loaf.

"PEACEFUL VALLEY" MAKES GOOD FILM

Dorothy Dalton, Enid Bennett and Pauline Starke are Stars in Other Offerings.

"Peaceful Valley," one of the late Sol Smith Russell's great stage successes, opened at the New Grand Central Theater in its film version yesterday with Charles Ray in the leading role. It is admirably suited to the peculiar talents of this bucolic young star. It is one of his best offerings of the season, with rural settings of rare charm and a pathetic story of a country boy's devotion to his younger sister who is lured to the city by a smooth-spoken villain.
The play is interwoven with homely comedy. On the bill also are a new weekly and Buster Keaton's latest comic creation, "Convict No. 13," Cesar Ness, tenor, sings an Italian grand opera aria.

Dorothy Dalton is the star at the Missouri in "A Romantic Adventure."
She has the role of a dancing girl, left homeless by her mother's desertion after her father's death.
Despite many obstacles, she wins fame as a dancer in European capitals. When her success is assured, the designing mother reappears and attempts to capitalize the daughter's talents. The daughter thwarts the mother's villainy after a series of interesting entanglements and adventures.

"The Courage of Marge O'Doone," a James Oliver Curwood picture, with Pauline Starke in the leading role, has first place on the bill at the Liberty. This is a thrilling tale of the far Northwest, in which the heroine has many narrow escapes from wild men and wilder beasts. The scenic settings are beautiful and the production and photography excellent.
On the bill also are several good short-reel features and another insalment of "Bride 13."

At the Delmonte the principal picture attraction is Enid Bennett in "Silk Hosiery," a social drama with much comedy of the farcical type.

A much exploited feature of the Delmonte bill also is a fashion review in which a number of young women display "latest creations" in gowns and furs. Chief Silver Tongue sings and the bill also includes several interesting short-reel offerings.

"The North Wind's Malice," based on a Rex Beach story, opened a four-day engagement at the Kings Theater yesterday. "Mid-Channel," with Clara Kimball Young in the leading role, is the week's bill at the Central.

SPENT $664,208 FOR SUFFRAGE

Woman's Party Announces Cost of Fight in Seven Years.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—Expenses of the campaign for the national woman suffrage conducted by the National Woman's party during the last seven years amounted to $664,208, according to an audited account made public here. The largest item included was $26,102 for organization work. Expenses in three national elections totaled $67,137.
The cost of picketing, resorted to around the White House and Congress in 1917 and 1918, the audit said, was $7481.

Father Spigardi's Brother Dies.
Louis Spigardi, 72 years old, sexton of the St. Charles Borromeo Church for 26 years and brother of the Rev. Father C. E. Spigardi, pastor of the church, died at 10:20 p. m. Saturday at the parochial residence, 2913 Locust street. Death was due to congestion of the lungs, resulting from a severe cold contracted two months ago. He was born in Italy, and is survived by his wife, who lives at the parochial home here. The funeral will be from the church at 9 a. m. tomorrow, with burial in Calvary Cemetery.

UNION CO-OPERATION ON COMPENSATION BILL

Charge at C. T. L. U. Meeting
Former Measure Was Killed by "Ambulance Chasers."

The Central Trades and Labor Union meeting yesterday afternoon directed its Legislative Committee to co-operate with committees from the Building Trades Council and the Metal Trades Council in the preparation of a new workmen's compensation measure to be submitted to the State Legislature in January.

The action followed a debate, several delegates charging that trades unionists had gone to great expense in having the first bill drafted, only to see it defeated through internal dissension in labor bodies. Other delegates said the defeat of the referendum was brought about by "ambulance-chasing" lawyers, who feared a loss of business if the bill became a law.

Jesse Keller, secretary of the Joint Executive Committee of the striking waiters, cooks and waitresses, who are fighting the open-shop policy of the Associated Hotel and Restaurant Owners, asked the central body to give financial support to the defense of the damage suits recently filed by several restaurant owners against strikers. He said the same principles of organized labor were involved in these suits as were involved in the celebrated Danbury hatters' case, which was decided against the workmen by the United States Supreme Court. Trade unionists throughout the United States contributed financially to that fight, Keller said. He thanked the delegates for the financial assistance the strikers already had received from union organizations. The Central Trades passed a resolution pledging full moral and financial support.

The Nonpartisan Political Campaign Committee reported that it had spent $12,229 during the recent campaign and added that their work on the whole had been successful. The committee's surplus of $35.93 was turned over to the striking waiters' fund.

The committee appointed to raise $50,000 among organized laboring men for the various charities sponsored by the Rev. Father Timothy Dempsey reported difficulty in getting responses. The report urged every trade unionist to contribute 25 cents to the fund.

PUBLIC HEARING ON PROPOSED CHANGE IN THE ZONING LAW

A public hearing will be held Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock in Room 208 at the City Hall to get the views of property owners and residents of that section of the city bounded on the west by the city limits, on the east by Broadway and Hall's Ferry road, on the north by McLaran Avenue and on the south by Florissant Avenue about a proposal to amend the zoning restrictions so as to permit the erection of industrial buildings in that territory.

The hearing will be held by the Zoning Committee of the City Plan Commission, and everyone interested is invited to express his or her opinion. Under the present provisions of the zoning law the district is reserved exclusively for residences and small retail stores. The district embraces the O'Fallon Park residence section and all of the area north and west of Calvary and Bellefontaine Cemeteries. There is much vacant land in the northwestern part of the district and it has been suggested that the erection of industrial plants would enhance the value of property in that neighborhood.

CRIME IN CHICAGO "A BUSINESS"

CHICAGO, Nov. 29.—"Crime is an established business in Chicago," according to Henry Barrett Chamberlin of the Chicago Crime Commission.

"We are being told that the crime situation in Chicago is an emergency demanding our attention," Chamberlin told the Church Federation council today. "It is not; crime has been centralized, organized and commercialized. It is as steady a business as any conducted in this city."

BAKER SAYS ARMY PROVIDES BASIS FOR GREAT FORCE

Secretary's Report Declares It Is Model on Which Large Units Could Be Built Swiftly.

TOTAL STRENGTH OF ARMY IS 213,067

Total Cost of War Through War Department Is Put at $13,730,300,500—Value of Education.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—The post-war reorganization of the army marks a new era in the military history of the country, Secretary Baker declares in his annual report, just made public, as it provides an effective model on which great armies could be swiftly built in times of emergency.

Reviewing the military activities of the nation since 1776, Secretary Baker says that, although the United States was "the most peace-loving of all nations," it had been engaged in major domestic or foreign wars about one out of every four years during that period, and that the military power of the country had been in active use in war or military operations of some kind about three out of every four years.

"It is apparent, therefore, that while we do not need a great standing army we must have in the world as it is while we struggle to make it what it should be," Baker says. "We must have a body of trained men large enough in numbers to be an effective working model upon which great armies can be swiftly built in event of emergency."

"A justice-loving people may be forced by tragic necessity to resort to war, but it has no right to ask its sons to fight its battles outarmed and outbattled by an adversary."

Important lessons of the world war the War Department had proceeded on the accepted theory that the infantry remained the backbone of the army, the report said, although the importance of other arms of the service had been greatly increased by the swift developments of war.

"Profound and fundamental changes in armament were introduced and many of the instrumentalities devised are apparently only at the beginning of their development," said the War Secretary. "This infantry itself is no longer the foot-soldier armed with the musket, but the foot-soldier with the long-range, high-powered repeating rifle, the automatic rifle and the machine gun, which, in some of its uses, is analogous to light artillery. The advance of the infantry is no longer merely covered by protecting artillery fire, but the path of the advance must be cleared of obstructions and its position, once attained, must be protected by artillery of great power and extreme mobility."

Baker makes no comment on universal military training, a plan rejected by Congress in enacting the new army reorganization bill, but in reviewing the provisions of the new military law, he says that one of the most important features of the legislation is the provision for a "constant and systematic relationship between the National Guard and the regular army."

This provision, Baker declares, will do much to "prevent antagonisms which have in the past been the result of the military law, but which have been characteristic of the relationships of the two forces."

213,067 Men in the Army.
"The army is essentially a new army," Baker continues, "not merely another army than that which existed prior to the war, but new in its attitude toward the country and the country's attitude toward it. The army has been retrained, and the extent to which a new era has dawned for it is shown by recruiting. The difficulty in securing the necessary enlistments for our small pre-war army has in a large part disappeared, and although the stimulus of active operations is now absent, the total strength of the army Nov. 3, 1920, was 213,067."

Baker declares that the one-year enlistment period authorized by Congress has not justified itself and asserts that "from the point of view of the efficiency of the army one-year enlistment periods are of little value."

The report reviews at length the new educational and recreational program established since the war and declares that "the time will come soon when the peace-time army will be throughout an educational institution from which men will graduate better equipped to enter civilian pursuits and with a larger and firmer grasp on citizenship and its responsibilities and privileges."

The total cost of the war through the War Department is placed by the Secretary at about $13,730,300,500 and it is stated that in the liquidation of claims and contracts the department saved the Government 87 per cent of the cost of the war obligations at the end of the war.

Pope Benedict Believes League of Nations Will Save World From War, German Biographer Declares

Catholic Church Head Is Active in Fighting Bolshevism and Communism, Fearing and Hating Both, Writer Says

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
ROME, Nov. 27.—Herr Leo Schwoering-Koeln, a widely known political writer, has just finished a character sketch of Pope Benedict. The sketch has not only interested both secular and holy Rome; it has surprised the secular part. For Pope Benedict XV is so near, shut up in his Roman palace, that few Italian politicians give him much thought.

But the secular press admits, regretfully, that a foreigner's pen has shown them what an extraordinary genius lives behind those big bronze gates near St. Peter's, with a guard of honor and picturesque cloths perhaps blind the passer-by to the very up-to-date quality of the mind of the Pontiff within.

World Wide Activities.
As the Pope's activities are world wide, Herr Schwoering-Koeln's work is of world-wide interest, too, and worth the attention of all Americans, Catholic or Protestant; Greek or Jew.

After showing how Benedict XV found the Holy See completely isolated at the death of Pope Pius X, the biographer traces Benedict XV's self-imposed task of renewing the Holy See's political activities, a task in which he is succeeding, in spite of enormous difficulties, not the least of which was the Pontiff's misadventure as to the result of the late war. In this his policy, the Pope is guided by two principles: keep peace with modern ideas; expand diplomatic influence.

During the war Benedict appealed to all the belligerents in behalf of peace; after it he embraced the League of Nations plan. Just as his appeal for peace fell on deaf ears at the time, but finally found practical aid in President Wilson, says the biographer, so the League of Nations idea seems to be beaten for the time being. But again, like President Wilson, Pope Benedict firmly believes that a League of Nations, and that alone, will save the world from another war. He means to have that League.

But the Pontiff's activities do not stop here. He fears and hates Communism and Bolshevism; he is using the magnificent social organization of his Church to combat those two modern evils in every country; but he cares for the laboring classes, and has their betterment at heart. In many cases, by means of notes and through his organ, the Osservatore Romano, he has taken the part of laboring classes in great capital.

Temporal Recognition.
Herr Schwoering-Koeln thinks the Pope's efforts to make the League of Nations a success is also partly inspired by the hope that such a society when firmly established will moderate the power of the sovereign power. And the meeting between himself and President Wilson, when the latter visited Rome, marked, in his eyes, a great success in this direction. The "Treaty of London" was not to recognize the sovereignty of the Pope. But the very anxiety of the Italian Government, for whose sake this veto was inserted, shows how strong and important has become Pope Benedict XV's international position.

The biographer devotes much attention to the Pope's relation with France. He thinks Great Britain has obtained less from the Holy See with its Envoy Extraordinary than was hoped for, but he greatly values the bringing about communication between France and the Pope, broken off through Pius X's attitude.

"The Vatican needs France's support," he says, "in order to gain its chief end, which is to liberate itself from the chains of Italy. The Society of Nations has failed to do this, but France's moral influence, its influence in the Catholic world, is expected to do so. The Vatican's secret aid to France has greatly helped reactionary states; we see an example of this in the last French elections, and here again triumphs the School of Rampolla. (Pope Benedict's master in diplomacy.) France has had the Vatican's help in Syria."

The War Department is placed by the Secretary at about $13,730,300,500 and it is stated that in the liquidation of claims and contracts the department saved the Government 87 per cent of the cost of the war obligations at the end of the war.

Disposal of Surplus.
Discussing the disposal of surplus war stocks Secretary Baker recommends that in the future the department's plans keep in mind an effort to have on hand at the termination of a war a surplus of goods as far as consistent with army needs, that could readily and quickly be absorbed into the country's commerce.

Declaring that he is happy to leave his successors in the War Department the assurance that "in any national emergency they have but to use and direct the limitless capacity and willingness of the American people which spontaneously offers itself when a crisis comes," Baker concludes his report with a tribute to

CONGRESS' SHORT SESSION TO PASS ONLY MINOR BILLS

Important Legislation, Including Peace, Will Go Over to Special Session Expected to Be Called.

LEADERS DETERMINED ON ECONOMY POLICY

Big Paper Saving Will Be Made When Departments' Estimates, Unusually Large, Are Trimmed.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—It has become pretty definitely established that the short session of Congress, beginning Dec. 6, will devote itself almost exclusively to the annual appropriation bills. A few emergency measures may be passed upon, but generally speaking, the determination of foreign and domestic policy will be left to the next Congress under President Harding. That the incoming President will call this Congress into an extra session very soon after his inauguration, is regarded as certain.

In dealing with the appropriation bills it will be the policy of Republican leaders to make a large showing of economy. To use the phrase of some of them, they intend to begin the redemption of the promise-note given the country in the campaign. The pruning knife will be used liberally on department estimates of needs for the coming fiscal year. The saving that will be made will be largely a "paper saving"—the difference between the estimates and the amounts actually appropriated.

But Herr Schwoering-Koeln sees that Pope Benedict does not strive after union with the Italian Government for local reasons only. He has the world in mind. Italy and Britain are of the greatest importance to the church's future in the Orient. And here his political program joins with a vast religious plan, which is to make the "East" Catholic instead of Orthodox. Benedict looks eastward to Poland, Armenia and Palestine, weaving a vast political net which will, he hopes, extend all over Russia, and the Balkans. The word of command is: "The Orthodox East belongs to the Catholic Church."

The disappearance of the Russian Empire, so heartily feared by the Holy See for generations, has opened the road across Russia to a Republican Congress and a Republican President are working together. Estimates Are Large.

Through failure to reduce their estimates, the present Democratic department heads are lending themselves to the success of a Republican undertaking. Swollen even beyond the amounts requested last year, the estimates are a direct invitation to cutting and slashing. By every dollar by which they exceed the needed needs, the large departments, the figures increase the Republican opportunity for rolling up an impressive paper saving.

Once more the ancient and Holy City is filled with Germans. Their language can be heard everywhere, on city cars, in restaurants, museums and on the Corso. Some are here to take up old threads of business dropped when Italy entered the war, but most belong to the monster migration of pilgrims, the Holy See's first German pilgrimage in nearly seven years.

Mr. Schult, Archbishop of Cologne, is at the head of it. During his address to the Pope, in the name of the pilgrims, the Archbishop laid stress on the Pope's work for Germany during the war. The Pope answered that it gave him comfort to know that his efforts had helped to stay the tears of German widows and fatherless children.

The Pope said mass especially for the pilgrims in the Chapel of St. Matilda, which is the Germans' own particular part of Vatican possessions, and gave them the communion.

Most of these German visitors are taking trips to other parts of Italy, so the trains are filled with them again. In general, their arrival has been greeted with good-natured indifference by the people, ready to wipe off old scores; but in one or two cases where some tried on their pre-war arrogant manner to the humble, they have been promptly snubbed; a fact which has made their fellow tourists more careful.

One of the emergency problems that may be taken up in the December session is that created by the heavy flood of immigration from Europe to the armistice. A great many Congressmen feel that some restrictive legislation should be enacted without delay. It is also possible that a reapportionment bill, fixing a new ratio of representation in Congress on the basis of the last census figures, will be acted upon. The point has been made that unless the ratio is determined at this session, some State Legislatures would have to be called into extraordinary session to take the necessary steps toward redistricting. Chairman Sivert of the Census Committee, which has this matter in charge, is one of those urging early action. It is considered likely that Congress will follow the line of least resistance and increase the size of Congress so that no State

Alexander Konta Writes of Suffering in Vienna, Due to Low Value of Money and Farmers' Refusal to Supply Food

Tells of International Commissions Crowding Others Out of the Hotels—Eggs Are Unknown.

BY ALEXANDER KONTA.
Copyright, 1920, by the Press Publishing Co., The New York World.

VIENNA, Nov. 28.—After running a lengthy gauntlet of visa stamps and passport sleuths, you alight in Vienna and enter a taxi. Then your real journey begins. I spent just four hours in my cab trying to find lodgings in a good hotel. It seemed at first a hopeless task. Everything was chock-a-block. My telegram in advance had been money wasted.

At last I got a bed in a bathroom, with the promise of something better in the morning. This is a promise that greets every new visitor, a promise dictated by the actual conditions of congestion. The wise man takes the bathroom every time.

Why the congestion? Are the Viennese encouraging so many visitors to their poor and hungry city?

No. I think the situation is largely due to the many international commissions which are now occupying the best rooms in the best hotels. Are the commissions everywhere living, so I am informed, and rightly, I believe, on the very fat of the land, with salaries that make Prime Ministers and other local dignitaries almost sullenly envious. Of course, one can hardly blame these men for having a good time while they are performing their difficult and useful labor, but it certainly works havoc with the transients who use the hotels. It is because the commissionaires are occupying the first-class front that you and I must seek next to the water faucet.

Eggs and Butter Scarce.
The fat of the land is no more a matter of speaking. There is no fat in the land. You find this out at breakfast. There is no butter; some kind friend sends that to you later, perhaps, instead of flowers. And there are no eggs.

"Scrambled eggs," I said merrily to Herr Ober on the morning of my stay. Every day this is Ober or Herr Ober in these demure days. "Kellner" is a term of reproach. "There are no eggs," was the reply, "and no butter." Then, when I saw breakfast had become a sort of pantomime meal, I fell back on coffee and toast.

"White bread, sir," asked his majesty. I nodded, and the waiter said: "I think I know where I can find you some, sir." I knew right then that I was in for my first trip.

The Herr rules absolute over the abnormal situation. You can get an omelet which the waiter smuggles into your room under a cloth, but it costs a small fortune in Austrian money. I paid $2.50 for one in American dollars. People almost frame eggs in Vienna, for they are as precious as lumps of coal during a strike. Hens rarely don't know their value.

As for bread, well, you can get plenty of it in a hotel if you bribe the waiter sufficiently. He engages in a sort of graft with outside bakers, who in their turn run the risk of punishment if they are caught. I told that to the kitchen boy, a decent one on night and saw a dozen long rolls on a shelf, each worth what some foolish American might choose to give for them. But if you don't fall for this graft, you have to eat poor white bread, and a dark corn bread the next.

Farmers Refuse to Supply Food.
The reason that they do not supply wheat bread all the time is that there is not enough wheat to go round and the people will not stand for corn bread as a steady diet. I am told that if this corn bread is eaten regularly for a certain period it causes a dangerous rash which seriously affects the sufferers' physical well-being.

Otherwise there is plenty to eat in Vienna. If one wishes to gorge, beef, veal and pork dominate the menu; soups are full of body, fish do not seem scarce, venison is common and reasonable and desserts are fairly rich and varied. Honey at breakfast is so plentiful that a friend of mine, having observed the disinclination among certain Austrians to labor, remarked that the bees seemed to be the only full time workers in the country.

But what I started to say was that as far as hotels are concerned, and I presume this applies to the homes of the upper classes, there is no such thing as food poverty. Larders are well stocked and conditions for all classes would be much better were it not for the attitude of the farmers outside Vienna.

These farmers are well to do and have all the food they want, but as a class they are anti-Semitic and refuse to part blank to supply Vienna with food because there are some 200,000 Jews in the city.

There are no dogs in the city; they have been eaten. I saw but one, a toy Pomeranian, during my entire stay. He was on the arm of a street vendor who was trying to sell him, and the little animal had been spared, I suppose, because there was not enough of him to eat.

Suffering Among Middle Classes.
Although on the surface there appears to be no change in the Austrian capital, there has been and there still is poignant poverty. My impression is that the class hit hardest of all by the fall in the value of the krona and the increase of prices is the middle class, at least that portion of it represented by workers in the letters, journalism and science as well as professors. These people are absolutely at their wits' end to make ends meet.

I met one old professor friend who admitted that he was practically living on a crust. He was too proud to beg, and yet he brought himself to ask me for an old pair of boots. His was only a moderate case.

Old Prof. Margulies actually died of starvation the other day. Journalists are in bitter need; painters are parting with their canvases at absurd prices just to get bread. Furniture is being sold piece by piece in countless homes to obtain money for food. Old and cherished jewelry is glutting the market, and no one knows when the end will come.

Through it all it is interesting to note that a certain pride characterizes these sufferers; they simply cannot beg. Of course, by that I mean the better class of people, for there are plenty of professional beggars in Vienna.

Hold-Up Men Take Boats.
All of these good people must inevitably go to the wall as things are tending. I met an old woman one afternoon who was wearing new shoes, with the tip, and in Vienna 2 cents. What more need be said? It remains, however, for the travelers who produce the proper certificate of baptism to do much better in Budapest than in Vienna. Things are from 15 to 20 per cent cheaper there, although they are not yet so bad that the barber has to pay for the privilege of shaving a man.

Thieves Always Crowded.
How can they live? Well, some of them don't. I tried to get the suicide statistics but failed. It must be, however, that deaths by suicide have greatly increased. Many live on in the hope of improvement in living conditions, and in the meantime save in every way possible. Such is the story of nearly all the countries that engaged in the war.

My belief is that Vienna, notwithstanding its crowded theaters, busy streets, hotel full of diners, its shops jammed with wonderful goods and eager shoppers and its general aspect of superficial activity and prosperity, is one of the most afflicted capitals of the world. Its opera house, packed at nearly every performance, is not patronized merely by profiteers, but also by nerve-worn people who pay a high price of admission to get relief from care. So with the other places of amusement. The faces of the people whom you see, say at a performance of "La Boheme," are faces of people to whom some of the privations represented in the first act of the opera are familiar from actual experience.

The cry for relaxation or recreation or whatever you may care to call it is powerful, obviously because those who call for it wish to forget. I am inclined to believe that I have listened to talk between men and women which absolutely amazed me and would be absolutely taboo with us.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—Eddie Rickenbacher, American ace, flew from Los Angeles to San Francisco yesterday in 3 hours and 10 minutes, said to be a record for a northwest flight over 241 miles. He bucked a heavy wind all the way and made a forced landing at San Jose for gasoline. A mark of 3 hours and 1 minute was set for the southward flight over the distance Saturday by Lieut. E. C. Increase in Highway Robbery in Austrian Capital Marked by Taking of Shoes From Victims.

where it used to cost $6 when the krona was worth 20 cents. Of course, it still costs the Austrian $6, or its equivalent in kronen.

A good lunch costs now about 50 cents, with a half bottle of wine, soup, meat and dessert. A piece of toilet soap costs 50 to 50 kronen. A little bottle of ink costs 20 kronen, or 3 cents; a pocketknife with scissors, nail file and so on, of good steel, 350 kronen, or about 35 cents. A rose, 70 kronen, the high cost of flowers being due to the fact that they are brought from Italy. Yet a rose costs not more than 3 or 4 cents. Newspapers are published at an average of from 80 hellers to a kronen, which is worth one-sixth of a dollar.

All Interested in Exchange.
Candy seems expensive, but to an American it means nothing. A small tablet of chocolate costs 5 or 6 cents. The candy stores are crowded at early all times. I cannot understand why. I believe the sale of candy increased greatly in the United States with the advent of prohibition, but that reason does not hold here. Are the Viennese eating candy because they are hungry and crave sweets? And how is it that they can pay the prices which to them must be large and are to a visitor so small?

But no matter what other interesting aspects Vienna may present, it is the exchange—that which interests everybody, principally because of the low prices of commodities—which particularly interests Americans and Englishmen. The question of the hour and the minute in Vienna is "exchange value."

That word, which is on the lips of the masses, valua seems to be the question on which the future of each depends. Will the crown ever get back to normal? What is it worth today?

These are the thoughts that occupy the people, and the crazy speculation on the bourse makes the crown fluctuate in value so that no one knows from day to day where one stands. These speculators are known as exchange robbers and they are as little respected by the solid people of the community and as much hated as the so-called Schieber are in Germany.

The cheapness of things is brought home to the American who keeps his respect for his valua seems to be the question on which the future of each depends. Will the crown ever get back to normal? What is it worth today?

CARDINAL LOGUE DENOUNCES IRISH MURDER OUTRAGES

Primate of Ireland Believes if "Balance Were Struck It Should Be Given Against Crown Forces."

ARRAIGNS METHODS OF GOVERNMENT

Warns the People of Country Against Any Association That Would Lead Them Into Crime.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, Nov. 28.—Cardinal Logue, the Primate of Ireland, in a pastoral letter read yesterday in all the churches of the archdiocese, denounces the murders in Ireland and declares that if a balance were struck between last Sunday's assassinations of officers and the shooting by the police in Croke Park, he believes it "should be given against the forces of the crown."

His letter scathingly arraigns the methods the Government is pursuing, but warns the people "against any association, secret or open, which would lead them into any disorders or crime."

The Cardinal in the letter says the ardent hopes of the Irish people for peace and the end of European and other cruelties.

In support of this he cites a letter from the Archbishop of Malines and all the Bishops in Belgium conveying their sympathy to the Irish people. The pastoral proceeds to condemn in the strongest terms Sunday's tragedies, declaring belief that every man and woman in Ireland deplored and detested these "cold-blooded murders," which the Cardinal says "no object could excuse and no motive justify," and adding "the perpetrators of such crimes are not real patriots of their country, but enemies."

Turning to the Croke Park affair, the Cardinal says the forces of the crown were bound by their officers to protect and not to destroy the people, especially those within their rights and innocent of any offense.

"The assassination of individuals is a detestable crime and a terrible outrage against God's law," he continues, "but it is a greater shock to humanity, a graver outrage against the divine ordinance whereby human life is protected, to turn lethal weapons against defenseless, unarmed, closely packed multitudes."

With reference to reprisals, Cardinal Logue says lives and property are being sacrificed in cases where there has been no outrage which could give color to retaliation and that the activities of the military were being carried into districts which hitherto had been considered peaceful.

Pope Told Arrest of Sinn Fein Leaders Will Have Bad Effect.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Nov. 28.—The Pope is following with anxious interest the development of the situation in Ireland, and is deeply grieved at the daily reports of bloodshed. Learning of the arrest of Arthur Griffith and Prof. MacNeill of the Sinn Fein, he inquired the effect it might produce and was told by a prominent Irishman that both men exercised a moderating influence on their followers, therefore their disappearance would probably have a bad, rather than a good effect.

May Ask Friendly Power to Interfere in Ireland.

By the Associated Press.
ROME, Nov. 28.—Members of the Italian Chamber of Deputies and Senate have received a strong protest concerning the latest serious events in Ireland from the Irish clergy, headed by Cardinal Logue, Archbishop of Armagh. Facts enumerated in the protest, and the language used, have produced a profound impression, especially among members of the Catholic party, who, it is asserted, have taken a decided attitude in favor of Ireland.

It is expected interpellations will be presented to the chamber and Senate, asking the Government if it is not possible for a friendly power to interfere, either directly or through the League of Nations, to obtain solution of what would be the present condition of affairs in Ireland.

Earthquake Felt in Oregon.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 28.—An earthquake in various degrees of mildness from here to Spokane, Wash., was experienced early yesterday. At Hood River, Ore., it was strong enough to awaken sleepers and to cause some alarm in the villages. At Spokane it was said to have been a "pronounced earthquake" of a duration of 10 minutes. No damage was reported.

GIRL - GIRL - GIRL

SECOND INSTALLMENT.

WHEN they had finished each his third serving of the chosen delicacy, they went to the unusual courtesy of returning the used glasses and urns to the counter. It was William who proposed doing this, adding, "I believe if the public would make as little trouble for other people as they can, why, the country would get along better. For instance, you take that girl yonder, why, somebody's got to come for these things, and she's probably got enough on her hands the way it is. We might just as well be a little thoughtful like this, once in a while."

Johnnie agreed, and when they had completed their manifestations of interest in the country's good, the lovely soda girl split a little nod and smile between them and said pleasantly: "Thanks!"

"Oh, no," William protested, instantly. "Thank you! Thank you, very, very much!" Then, lifting their hats, they passed out into the street. Under similar circumstances, neither was ordinarily wont to lift his hat, and it was but natural that, rather elated by his own farewell courtesies, William should make some comment upon the act. "You know what I think, Johnnie? I think a person ought to be just as polite to people under them as we are to our equals."

"I do, too," said Johnnie. "I believe it's one of the best signs of a gentleman. Besides, what harm is it going to do anybody to take his hat off to people that are under them? You take our inferiors, for instance; well, they don't have as much happiness in their lives and it helps their self-respect to speak to them just as decently as you do to anybody. My mother sends our clothes out to a poor old washerwoman, and when I meet her on the street I take off my hat to her just the same as anybody."

"I do, too," William said, earnestly. "It's a good deal the way you say, Johnnie. You take people like that, they don't get around much, or anything, and I think showing them a little politeness, it's a sign of a gentleman; and if he wouldn't do it he oughtn't to be called a gentleman at all."

"Yes, sir," said Johnnie. "That's the way I feel about it, Bill."

They walked on, thoughtfully, and presently were halted from across the street; Joseph Bullitt came hurrying through the traffic to greet them. Their response was cordial, yet there was a flavor of amusement in it—amusement not unfriendly, although rather indulgent. Joe was neat, even jaunty, but to their eyes he lacked in fashion; his coat, in particular, being nothing but one struggling error on top of another. Here made visible was a barrier between them and the old life; they liked Joe and might become intimate with him again, yet things could never be quite what they had been in the old days. Joe, himself, was unaware that this was true, and even inquired if it didn't feel good to be back in God's country again.

"Well, it's a funny ole burg," Johnnie took it upon himself to reply. "I guess we got to stand for it for the next three months somehow, anyway."

"Did you ever get a chance to go to New York while you were East?" Joe asked.

His two friends laughed, and, by a common impulse, struck each other. "Did we ever?" William exclaimed. "That's funny."

Joe was generous enough to admire; he gazed brightly upon the travelers, saying: "Well, if that's the way of it, I guess little old New York must have taken some notice when you two hit Broadway."

They were not displeased. "Well, maybe it did," Johnnie admitted. "Broadway would look pretty good to me right now, if the truth must be told. But I guess I got to stand it here, some way, for the next three months, anyhow."

"Seen anybody?" Joe inquired; and there must have been some symbolism in the words, for although the two distinguished visitors had seen all the members of their immediate families, as well as several hundreds of passing citizens, not to mention the prettiest soda girl, probably, in the United States, they replied that, no, they hadn't seen anybody yet, and went on to ask what was "doing."

"Mighty little," said Joe. "I expect things'll liven up some, though, now you two are back. They'll have to liven up a whole lot," Johnnie Watson informed him cheerfully. "If they expect to keep me awake! I shouldn't wonder if I'd just get in a hammock and sleep all summer. Well, so long, you sports; I got to go up to my father's office and jolly him awhile. See you 'satternoon, maybe."

Turning into a cross street, he left them, and William walked along with Joe, his expression becoming one of severe preoccupation. "Ole burg seems just the same, Joe," he remarked. "Haven't seen any changes yet."

THE UNOFFICIAL CHAPERON

"Yes, everything's about the same," Joe said, nodding. "It seems funny," William went on. "You'd think the ole place'd want to show a little more life than it used to."

"Well, it does show some, Bill; in a way it you'd think they'd have waiters to come and take your orders, and everything like that. Johnnie and I were in there awhile ago, and the whole place was just the same old way it used to be."

His eyes went furtively sidelong to his companion's face, for at this point William had become insincere; the change at Burfree's was a stirring one—at least it had stirred William and Johnnie. And the difference between the former soiled boy and the present beautiful soda girl was so radical a less observant person than Joe Bullitt might have been surprised by the statement that everything was unchanged there—might also have gone on to speak of the soda girl, and impart the available information about her. On the contrary, the surprise was all William's, for Joe only said, in a casual tone, "Yes, everything's the same at Burfree's."

Not sidelong then, but fully, William stared at him. Joe remained placid, unconscious of the scrutiny—plainly, for him the soda girl had no existence. He had become a miracle of stolidness, it seemed. William dared to be more open in his soundings.

"Go to Burfree's as much as you used to?" he asked.

"Not lately."

"Why? Found a better place?"

"No," said Joe; and a sudden emotional remodeling of his features now made them into a reminiscent sketch of pain. Some deep experience in his life was touched upon; so much was immediately clear. "My stummock got to troubling me awhile back," he said. "I had to lay off."

William's interest flagged at once; the stummock troubles of others were nothing to him, and instinctively he feared Joe might wish to talk at length upon the subject. Somewhat abruptly, therefore, the traveler said: "Well, 's long, ole man; see you again," and turned back—turned back toward Burfree's.

He walked slowly, his glance absent and his lips, slightly parted, moving imperceptibly in the formation of words and phrases. It was a rehearsal, and the imaginary other character in the scene he built in gossamer, as he walked, was the lovely soda girl at Burfree's. "I hope you're not surprised to see me back again"—This was the airy and inaudible whisper that really lost itself inside his mouth before issuing—"But I thought you prob'ly'd think it was sort of rude for me to speak about Rumney Jiggers and then not come and tell you how to make 'em. I thought you prob'ly'd like to know. It'd take too much time to tell you right here, but I could call on you any evening and explain all about it. . . . Well, practickly any evening at all would be convenient. . . . Yes, I could come this evening. . . . There was a momentary hiatus: William's mind skipped the afternoon and dinner; the rehearsal passed to another scene. "Oh, good evening. Not at all! I was very glad to come. . . . Quite warm, strolling, but I'll soon cool off in the house. . . . Yes, I'm a sophomore. . . . My friend you saw me with this morning is a classmate—quite a good sort of fellow. . . . Ah, books of poetry upon your table, I see. . . . And a piano. . . . Yes, play to me if you will. . . . Your mother. . . . Of course, I shall be delighted to meet her, or any friends at all of yours. . . . No, you must not speak so humbly. Only a snob sneers at honest work. . . . I hope you will permit my mother to call upon yours. . . . My mother will assure you we shall be only too proud to receive you in our own house. . . . You will adore my mother. . . . My sister you might not like, and my father is a man you might not take to just at first; but my mother you will adore! She will understand you as I understand you. . . . You have beautiful hair, my Blanche!"

He had just given her this name when the dream stopped. She herself was within his view, through the interstices of Burfree's "window dressing," and she was manipulating a faucet for the final splutterings of aerated water into a glass containing empuled soupiness. Johnnie Watson, who stood at the counter waiting, evidently had a surfeit of chocolate and had changed his diet, but nothing had altered the look he bent upon the soda girl.

William hesitated; then a delicacy of feeling got its way with him, though kindness toward Johnnie was not part of it, and he walked slowly round the block. When he came back Johnnie was seated at the little table, a straw connecting him with the purple liquid, his steadfast, inoffensive eyes upon the busy soda girl at the counter, where other customers stood. When William came round again, Johnnie was at the counter and Blanche was brewing more purple. Twice more William went round the block, and when he came to Burfree's window the last time, Johnnie was gone—and, indeed it was now the hour for William to be bound home for lunch himself. But he went into Burfree's.

Why Women Are Hard to Photograph

Noted English Artist Says:

DON'T WANT TO SHOW WRINKLES
FUSSY ABOUT DRESS EFFECTS
NEVER GET MOUTHS RIGHT

Men Satisfied to Look Natural

By Marguerite Mooers Marshall.

WHY is a woman harder to photograph than a man?

Why is the American woman the most difficult in the world to catch with the camera?

Why do wrinkles be left in a photograph?

What sort of dress should you wear if you want an effective photograph? These and other interesting questions were answered for me by an exceedingly clever young woman from whom the camera holds few secrets. She is Miss M. Olive Edis, English expert in color photography, and the photographer of everybody and everything from the Queen of Spain to a Canadian bear, from a London George and Fother to the British Waacs and V. A. D.'s. She was fifth official photographer at the British front in France and is one of the few women "fellows" of the Royal Photographic Society. She has a marvelous collection of autographed photographs among them all the British royal Princes and their sister, Princess Mary.

"I like and admire women," Miss Edis told me, "but I must say that I find men much easier to photograph. It isn't that they are less vain—I think we all have our little vanities. But a man, particularly a distinguished and clever man, usually likes himself the way he is, and wants his photograph to look like him. That's what I want, too—a photograph that shows everything else, is natural."

"Women, on the other hand, are so anxious about their effects—particularly about the effect of their dress. They want their clothes to be beautiful in the photograph. They worry about their mouths, too. It's very common for a woman to say to me, 'No photographer ever gets my mouth just right. It's so difficult to catch the shape and expression.' I tell her to stop thinking about her mouth—that's my business. But men don't worry about that feature—and if a man has any sort of a mustache the photographer needn't worry about it either."

"Do you think American women take attractive photographs?" I asked Miss Edis, for she "did" many of them in Canada this summer.

"I like American women immensely, and have warm friends among them," she said, "but I find them especially difficult to photograph. More so than the women of any other country, because their greatest beauty lies in their animated expression and its swift response to their varying moods. They have too much expression in a photographic standpoint; it is almost impossible to catch their charm with a camera."

"Then you believe in making photographs attractive, as well as natural?" I asked.

"I believe, a photograph should represent truthfully the subject at his or her most attractive moment," explained Miss Edis. "I have never yet found a human being who did not have such a moment. I have looked in secret despair at some persons who have come to my studio in Sheringham, England, but after I studied them awhile and talked to them I always discovered an attractive aspect. You see, there's a great deal in being in sympathy with your sitters."

But Miss Edis is opposed resolutely to the prettifying of photographs. She does very little retouching.

"The wrinkles, the long nose, the chin that is not classical must stay in the photograph, be it of man or woman, if the subject is to look natural," she insisted earnestly. "If a man loves a woman, for example, surely it is HBR photograph that he wants to carry about with him or keep on his desk. If all he wants is a picture of a pretty girl, he can get that out of a magazine or a pictorial supplement. The face is an index of the character, and the photograph, if you like to put it that way, should be the X-ray of the soul. One is not truly a photographer unless one's work shows what is inside the sitters, as well as what is outside."

Miss Edis' color photographs are almost unannually lifelike. She uses a French process, which, before she applied it to human beings, was employed chiefly in garden photography. The photograph is never transferred from the glass plate on which it is taken, but the plate is placed in a dainty leather case and so arranged that it can be hung in a window or set in front of a lighted lamp. Then, the light falling through shows every tint of the subject's hair, complexion, and dress—naturally, a blond or ruddy type is especially effective. "No way has yet been invented," the photographer explained, "of transferring this likeness in color to paper or cardboard. It is the miniature of photography."

Because Miss Edis had said that women make themselves hard to photograph by fussing about their clothes, I asked her, for a final query, how one should dress to be effective before the camera.

"For color photography I like a simple gown of sumptuous material and color—such as a gold brocade," she said. "But for the ordinary photograph, everyday clothes, those in which a person works, are best. And they must be simple in line and not extreme in fashion. The ultra-fashionable hat or frock of the moment will be out of date in a year. But a becoming hat or suit or dress, which conforms to the natural lines and which expresses no vagary of the mode, will look well in a photograph for many seasons."

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By Helen Rowland

IN the School of Experience, most of us seem to be doing brilliantly, until we discover that we have flunked the exams.

The honeymoon is not positively over, until the first time a man tries to square himself with his wife by offering her a check instead of a kiss—and succeeds.

If spirits COULD come back, after a thousand years, a woman's first question would be, "What are they wearing?" a man's, "What are they drinking, now?"

It makes a man almost as resentful not to be allowed to break his promises, engagements and wedding vows as it makes a small boy not to be allowed to break his own toys.

A girl's mind is so complicated and incomprehensible, that she can prove to a man that she feels nothing but platonic friendship for him, at the same time that she is thinking how nice it would be to run her fingers through his hair, and what a kissable mouth he has.

"Personality" is the color of the soul; and people who are famed for "personality" are those whose souls are such a beautiful color that they are not afraid to SHOW them.

UNCOMMON SENSE

Learn Your Weakness and Correct It.

By John Blake

EVERY man, like every army, has a weak point.

The wise commander, knowing that his force is weak in the commissary department or the Quartermaster's department, or in the Engineer corps, blends all his efforts to correct that weakness.

You are your own General, in command of your own mental and physical forces.

The first thing for you to do is to seek out your own weaknesses and concentrate on the job of correcting them.

If your health is bad, build it up. The machinery of your mind will not function properly on a frail body.

See a doctor and find out what you can do to get health. He can advise you. You must do the work.

If your falling is laziness, get it out of your system. Think about that one thing and its consequences, till you have disposed of it. If you are timid, make it a point to see and talk to people till you have an easy presence, and have lost your self-consciousness.

If you fall easily into excesses, stop that, and stop it right away. It will not be easy, but it can be done.

By looking over your mental equipment you can soon discover your own shortcomings.

A man ought to know himself better than he knows other people. He certainly ought to know his own failings, for he suffers from them repeatedly.

Most of these failings can be corrected. Keep at them until they are.

Remember that there are more than a billion people in the world, and that all of them are to some extent your competitors for success.

At least a thousand of them are your direct and aggressive competitors, wanting the same success, perhaps the same position in life that you want.

A hard battle is ahead of you. Equip yourself for it and you will probably win. Fail to equip yourself, and you will assuredly lose.

You will need all the strength you can muster, and every weakness in your battle line may let the enemy sweep through and put you out of the fight. Eradicate all of them that you can.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

FARMER BROWN'S BOY APPEARS.

By Thornton W. Burgess

THE hunter who had shot at Rusty the Fox Squirrel went to the tree up which Rusty had climbed and looked carefully at the place where the shot had struck. He found two or three little red spots and some red hairs.

He knew at once what they meant. "I hit that fellow after all," said he and actually looked pleased. You see, hunters are very apt to be thoughtless. That hunter was thinking of himself and not giving a single thought to poor Rusty. He was pleased to think he had shot straight and the idea that Rusty might be suffering didn't enter his head.

Then he carefully walked around the tree looking up for a glimpse of Rusty and ready to shoot again. Presently he discovered the hole in which Rusty had sought safety. He studied it carefully.

"I believe," said he, "that if I climb up there I can get that fellow out of there. That was a Fox Squirrel, the first one I have seen about here for years. He is worth taking a little trouble to get."

So the hunter stood his gun against another tree and began to climb the tree in which Rusty was hiding. It was a big tree and hard to climb. The first branches were hands of Farmer Brown's boy, he shouted angrily: "Put that gun down where you found it! Do you hear?"

The answer in the face of Farmer Brown's boy gave way to a sudden grin. "Yes, I hear," said he, "but I'm not going to put this gun down. Instead, I have a great mind to let you know how it feels to be a Squirrel."

His face grew angry looking again as he continued: "Now, you come down out of that tree, and be quick about it. This is my father's land, and no hunting is allowed on it, and you know it. You couldn't have got here without seeing the signs forbidding all hunting. Now come down in a hurry and get off of this land as fast as your legs will take you."

If you want this gun you'll have to go ask Farmer Brown for it. He's my father, and I'm going to take it home and turn it over to him. When you come for it I can order you to leave something to say to you, and I hope I'll be there to hear it. If he doesn't have you arrested you'll be lucky. Now come 'down'."

If ever there was an angry hunter it was the one who slid down that tree. He knew he had broken the law by hunting on that land, for he had seen the warning signs. Now that he was caught by a freckle-faced boy, and because the latter had his gun, he was helpless. He offered Farmer Brown's boy money to give him back his gun and say nothing about it, but Farmer Brown's boy merely ordered him off and handed that gun in a way that made the hunter understand that he knew all about guns and how to use them.

So, saying many ugly things, the hunter started off, and Farmer

Beauty and Health

Have You Trim Ankles?

If you have not, pray forego the present mode of abbreviated skirts. But many of my readers will say, "I'd rather be out of the world than out of fashion." Wherefore it will become necessary for you to devote some time each day to beautifying your ankles.

Because it is a pretty woman everything is forgivable, whereas to one not so endowed the slightest deviation from that which is regarded as modest and correctly slender, is an undoubted breach of correct form.

It goes without saying that since footwear will be more conspicuous than ever this season, it must be chosen with the utmost care. When the ankle is naturally slender, any weave of stocking, so long as it fits and clings beautifully, can be worn.

When, however, the ankle is thick or even "beef to the heels," the finest texture should be chosen, for day wear the drop-atch, the embroidered clock, and for evening wear a design confined to the front of the stocking, or an insert of lace, which gives an effect of slenderness, will deceive the eye and add materially to the shapeliness of the ankle.

The same thought and care should be given to shoes and slippers. Straps across the instep and around the ankle should be avoided, as should any adornment that calls attention to this feature.

High shoes must fit perfectly; nothing is more unsightly than shoes that wrinkle around the ankle, which, by the way, is a frequent fault seen in spats. And why will women with ankles conspicuously large wear spats? For the same reason that they will wear short skirts, I suppose.

Choose, then, your footwear with due regard to your anatomical defects and assets and you cannot go astray.

Now it is a very easy matter to trim down the ankles, as well as to make the feet more slender and supple, by pursuing a few simple exercises. Begin by raising and lowering the body 19 times upon the toes, maintaining the erect position throughout. Then raise the body on tiptoe, which tenses the muscles of the calves; slowly lower the trunk to the floor, hold this position momentarily and slowly raise the body to original position. If you are unaccustomed to exercise, are awkward and unstable, it will add you to place one hand on a firm piece of furniture as it is apt to slide away and so cause an accident) until you have acquired complete command of these unused tissues, when it is better to go through the little exercises without assistance. Do these 50 to 100 times morning and night. Splendid results will follow.

Forcible massage is also an excellent method to reduce over-tight ankles. Begin at the instep, grasp the tissues and forcibly turn and twist them upon the underlying bone. When both hands are used encircle the limb so that the thumbs meet in front and gradually work up with forceful pressure movements. The desired end will be reached more quickly if an astringent ointment is rubbed in at the same time. Here is an excellent one: Powdered tannin, 25 grains; oil of sweet almonds, 200 grains; white wax, 100 grains; tincture of benzoin, 50 grains; rose water, 50 grains. Rub this well into the parts with forcible massage.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

GOOD NEWS TRAVELS SLOWLY.

My coal man's due to get a shock.
The haughty wretch will soon be humble.
The autocrat he has in stock
Inside a month is going to tumble.
He'll beg to let him put coal in.
For what it costs to load and leave it;
But that doesn't help me fill my bin
Because he simply won't believe it.

I know that wool is going to fall;
According to expert advice.
Before the snow flies, we can all
Buy winter suits at modest prices.
This news on every hand we see;
"Clothes Crash" is how the headlines word it;
But that's of little use to me
Because my clothes haven't heard it.

We also learn that silk is down;
The tidings that one's neighbors bring one Declare a song will buy a gown.
Next month—if you know how to sing one.
The price of cotton's dropping, too,
Conditions in the trade compel it—
That everybody knows is true—
Except the gentlemen who sell it.

Because I'd really like to keep
A trifle of small per diem,
Now I am sure these things are cheap
I'd like to rush downtown and buy 'em.
But though I wander up and down
In prosecuting this endeavor,
The men who sell things merely frown,
And soak me just the same as ever.

be quite safe in saying that he was a cosmopolitan."—Los Angeles Times.

Some Appetite!

about an alderman. This man said followed for years. At the start of a banquet I sit six inches off from the table and keep on eating until I'm up to it."—Boston Transcript.

Bomb Explodes in Warehouse in London—Public Buildings in England Heavily Guarded—Armed Boats
Patrol the Thames.

By the Associated Press.
BELFAST, Nov. 22.—The city hall at Cork was set on fire this morning and reports from that city state the Thomas Ashe Sinn Fein Club and the Charlotte quay are ablaze. Much damage has been done. It is stated.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS
IN ENGLISH CITIES
CLOSELY GUARDED

Armed Motor Boats Patrol the Thames—Bomb Explodes in London Warehouse.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Nov. 22.—Public buildings in London and in many of the other large cities of England were closely guarded against apprehended Sinn Fein attacks by heavy detachments of police and detectives tonight. In this city the patrol was not limited to streets, but armed motor boats moved up and down the Thames in front of Parliament buildings. With Downing street and its immediate neighborhood shielded from the rest of the city by a high fence, which was constantly under the eyes of uniformed men, and with the Parliament buildings sentinel-ed by Government soldiers, London today assumed the atmosphere of a siege.

There is nothing to connect the Sinn Fein with the explosion of a bomb in a warehouse in Old Swan Lane, this city, early this morning, but the people of the city ascribed to that organization. The bomb which apparently was carried in the warehouse in a traveling bag, was left there to explode by means of a time fuse, was heard over a wide section of the city and blew out the windows of buildings nearby.
Started a fire, but the police and fire men, who were on the scene almost immediately, succeeded in extinguishing the flames before they had gained headway. The street where the warehouse is situated has been closed by the police. It is a narrow thoroughfare near London Bridge and contains no dwelling houses.
Experts from Scotland Yard examined the building today, no one being permitted to enter the office on the upper floors. It seemed evident the damage from the fire was slight. Several firms, shopkeepers and manufacturers used the building.

Several men suspected of setting fire to warehouses in Liverpool
Saturday night are under arrest.
It is claimed by the police that American gunmen are in that city, a suspicion is made that men want in Ireland for shooting policemen and soldiers have crossed the Irish Sea to Liverpool. The financial loss caused by Saturday night's fire in Liverpool is estimated at a million pounds sterling.

Glasgow and the Clyde shipbuil-ding district have been placed under close guard, and it is declared the authorities that many Sinn Fein men are known to be in Scotland.
The public will not only be excluded from the galleries of the House of Commons, but denied admission Members of the Commons will be able to interview their constituents only in the outer lobbies. Persons having business in the house will be unknown to the police who will be searching for them into the area yard also will be subject to a close observation. The House Lords has adopted precautions to flar to the Commons.

The special civilian constabulary at London has been notified to be ready in readiness to assist the regular police should the necessity arise.
Every fire station has been circularized to the effect that all doors except the main entrance must be locked at dusk and that persons entering must be closely questioned.
There was a rush today by property owners for insurance coverage.
